WILSON ADDRESSES CONGRESS, URGING CURRENCY REFORM

President Tells Congressmen That Country Expects Immediate Action in Revising Laws on Money Questions

"IT IS OUR DUTY," HE DECLARES TO LAWMAKERS

Galleries and Corridors of House of Representatives Packed Long Before President Arrived

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Bearing a personal plea for immediate action by congress to revise the banking and currency laws, that business may be aided in meeting tariff revision, President Wilson for the second time went to the house of representatives today and personally read his address on the subject to both houses of congress assembled in joint session.

Although shorn of some of the novelty that attended his first appearance, when he upset presidential traditions of more than a century, today's visit of the president to congress took on a deeper significance.

On his first visit he delivered a message, long anticipated, urging the carrying out of the party's pledges for immediate revision of the tariff.

His address today was an appeal to every member of the house and senate to lay aside personal considerations and sacrifice comfort and even health if necessary, to secure at once a revision and reform of the nation's banking system. Only in that way he declared, could the country secure the benefit of the tariff revision soon to be completed.

"IT IS OUR DUTY."

"It is perfectly clear that it is our duty to supply the new banking and currency system the country needs, and that it will immediately need it more than ever," said President Wilson.

"Shall we hasten to change our tariff laws and then be laggards about making it possible and easy for the country to take advantage of the change? There can be only one answer to that question. We must act now, at whatever sacrifice to ourselves."

The author and stregulf of this special message held the attention of his large audience through its delivery. The chamber was filled with members of the representatives, galleries were crowded with men and women from the official set and corridors were jammed with those unable to gain entrance.

The president gave no direct indorsement to the Glass currency bill, which is to form the basis for the Democratic revision of the banking laws, but indirectly made it known that it had been prepared with his counsel and approval.

"The committees of congress to which legislation of this character is referred has devoted careful study to the means of accepting those objections," he said in conclusion. "They have honored me by consulting me. They are ready to suggest action."

Speaker Clark announced Representatives Underwood, Fitzgerald and Mann as members of the committee to escort President Wilson to the chamber. The vice president announced Senators Kern, Reed and Gallinger as the senate members.

Just before 1 o'clock the house doorkeeper dashed into the chamber and shouted:

"The president of the United States!"

Galleries and the floor arose as the president walked in from the speaker's lobby and with a bow to the speaker and the vice president, mounted the steps to the clerk's desk.

"I present to you the sixty-third congress the president of the United States," announced Speaker Clark.

Addressing first the two presiding officers, the president turned to the desk and in a low, even voice that was never raised but which penetrated clearly to every ear in the chamber, began the reading of his address. Not a stir from the audience interrupted.

At 1:10 o'clock the president had finished reading his address and left the house chamber.

Long before the capitol doors were opened today hundreds of people lined up in a steady rain in the hope of getting in to hear President Wilson deliver his address to congress on currency reform. Although the attendance had been rigidly limited to one card of admission for each member of either house with provision for the president's family and the cabinet circle, hundreds clamored for admission.

Railings were erected near the entrance doors and guards placed in charge of the entrances.

HIS MESSAGE.

The message in full follows:

Mr. Speaker, Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Congress:

"It is under the compulsion of what seems to me a clear and imperative duty that I have a second time this session sought the privilege of addressing you in person. I know, of course, that the heated season of the year is upon us, that work in these chambers and in the committee rooms is likely to become a burden as the season lengthens, and that every consideration of personal convenience and personal comfort, perhaps, in the cases of some of us, considerations of personal health even, dictate an early conclusion of the deliberations of the session; but there are occa-

OTTLEY AND GRAY HEAR PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—John K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National bank, and James R. Gray, president of The Atlanta Journal, heard President Wilson's currency message from a private gallery in the house of representatives. They were well impressed with the address.

PRESIDENT'S MASTER MIND WINS BRYAN TO HIS CURRENCY PLAN

All Differences Between Wilson and His Secretary of State Are Settled, and Commoner Backs Glass Bill

ADMINISTRATION HAS PASSED ROUGHEST SEAS

Split in Cabinet Is Avoided by Wilson's Persuasive Powers Over Other Great Master Minds

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—Back of the formation of the Owen-Glass-McAdoo currency bill and its introduction in the house today lies another story of vital significance to the Democratic party and the country generally. It concerns itself with the achievement of President Wilson in winning Secretary of State Bryan over to the bill.

The complete meeting of the minds of the master minds of the party on this question—one which dragged down the second Cleveland administration and kept his party from power and in dissension during all the sixteen years of Bryan's leadership—has a significance extending far beyond the drafting of a currency measure that commands the united support of the administration forces.

It means that Bryan's radical reasoning is now in accord with the thinking of his chief, the president, and the very lively fears of a break between the president and the Commoner, which have been a subject of common gossip and conjecture, are overcome with a success that a short time ago seemed to be impossible.

There has been an honest dread of that break between Wilson and Bryan. Both men have been getting along famously, but Bryan's own statement this morning carries an intimation of what the president has been up against in his determination to have immediate currency legislation. There is a world of meaning in this sentence by Bryan: "Conflicting opinions, honestly entertained and strongly adhered to, have been reconciled with a success hardly to be expected."

BRYAN'S FORMER PLAN.

Bryan is believed to have stood for a plan that, if not actually modeled on "greenbackism" Wilson would not, for one minute, consent to any such radical program. He knew the lesson of civil war greenbackism all too well. He believed that the end would be attained if the people, through the government, were made the bankers of the currency issue and their banks made their agents, not their masters.

About two weeks ago the situation is said to have been precarious. Bryan disagreed with the McAdoo plan, it was, as he says, an honest difference of opinion—one that concerned a principle for which Bryan has been fighting since '96. His followers in congress knew of this difference of opinion and his intimate friend, Representative Henry, as the country now knows, made a move to block currency legislation at this session. Bryan was not seeking a quarrel, on the contrary the man was gloomy and sorrowful over his inability to agree with the Wilson.

At a juncture when it was thought that the worst fears of a break were to be realized, the president got his powers of persuasion in action. He laid the cards on the table to Bryan and reasoned the situation from every angle, and conquered. There were several points at issue and it concerned the constitution of the central control board.

Friends of Mr. Bryan have said that he felt that the reasoning of the president was invincible and that no man could have this honor, with himself and stayed off the reservation.

The result is that Wilson and Bryan are now closer together than ever before, and their devotion to each since March 4 has been a matter of wide comment. The chasm that split between them and a consequent disruption of the cabinet, of congress and the party in general has been rendered negative, for it is believed that if ever there was to be a division it would come on such a trying and delicate question as currency reform.

Not only has Wilson wholly captured the commoner, but he is fairly on the way to accomplishing the most difficult and ambitious legislative program since the Civil war. If he gets the tariff and currency settled, he will have settled two of the most vexatious problems that confronts the administration.

"I am glad to indorse most earnestly and unreservedly the currency bill which has been prepared by the chairmen of the two congressional committees in consultation with the president and Secretary McAdoo," said the secretary. "It is a much better bill than I supposed it possible to secure at this time. Incidentally my opinions, honestly entertained and strongly adhered to, have been reconciled with a success hardly to be expected. I have doubted until recently the wisdom of attempting currency legislation at this session, but my doubts were largely due to the fact that I feared the difficulties in the way would prevent an agreement upon a plan.

"The plan which the president now urges confers great advantages upon the banks, while it preserves to the people acting through the government all that is essential for the protection of the public. The notes are to be treasury notes, issued by the government and issued to the regional reserve banks. This is in harmony with the Democratic contention.

NO SURRENDER.

"There is no surrender of the government's right to issue money. The board of control is appointed by the president. Thus the people, acting through the government, are in entire control. This is necessary for the protection of the public's interests and ought not to be objectionable to the banks. The duties of this central board are so important that they could not with justice to the public be committed to men representing private interests.

"The regional reserve banks are to represent not only the national banks of

STATE LEGISLATORS ARE GATHERING FOR SESSION WEDNESDAY

Candidates for Speaker of House and President of Senate Are Corralling Votes in Advance of Session

ASSEMBLY TOO SMALL TO SUPPLY VOTES CLAIMED

Four Candidates for Speaker Pro Tem and Two for President Pro Tem Add Interest to These Contests

Up to 2 o'clock Monday afternoon between seventy-five and a hundred members of the general assembly had reached Atlanta, and others were arriving on every train. The legislature does not meet until Wednesday morning, but the spirited contests for president of the senate and speaker of the house has served to bring many of the senators and representatives here ahead of time.

The lobby of the Kimball house presents a scene of activity such as is visible during the annual sessions of the legislature and upon occasions of political conventions. Politicians are swarming about in clusters, exchanging information, canvassing for votes for one or the other of their favorites, and discussing prospective legislation.

All of the candidates, assisted by friends, are working hard to corral the elusive vote. Many former members are on hand; they just couldn't stay away during the period that "things were opening up." Among the exmembers who are present are former Representative W. L. McIntyre, of Thomas; former Representative Carl Vinson, of Baldwin; former Senator Emmett Shaw, of the Eleventh district; former Senator I. A. Bush, of the Eighth district, and former Representative Hooper Alexander, of DeKalb.

The races for speaker of the house and president of the senate are being waged diligently and aggressively. According to the dopesters, Hon. J. Randolph Anderson, of Chatham, is leading in the race for president of the senate, and Hon. W. H. Burwell, of Hancock, for speaker of the house. Both Mr. Anderson and Mr. Burwell claim their elections by large majorities.

Judge John T. Allen, of Milledgeville, who is opposing Mr. Anderson claims twenty-eight votes, the same number that is claimed by Mr. Anderson. There are only forty-four votes in the senate, and but twenty-three are required to elect.

CLAIMS OF CANDIDATES.

For the speakership Mr. Burwell claims 129 pledged votes; Hon. R. N. Hardeman, of Jefferson, another candidate for speaker, says he will go into the election with 70 pledged votes and that he will win on the first ballot. Hon. J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter, the third candidate for speaker, is making no claims, but is working hard. His friends say that he has fifty votes promised him. All that he will say on the subject is that "somebody is too liberal in his claims" and that this fact will be developed when the roll is called Wednesday morning. Mr. Sheppard does not believe that either of the candidates has enough votes to elect.

There are 186 members in the house. A majority of these, or 94 votes, will be necessary to elect a speaker. There is a possibility that more than one ballot will be necessary in which event the line-up may change considerably, making the result doubtful.

OTHER CONTESTS.

Second in importance to the races for president and speaker are those for president pro tem and speaker pro tem. The candidates for the first office are Senator Walter P. Andrews, of Fulton district, and Senator E. L. Smith, of the Ninth district.

There are four candidates for speaker pro tem, and they are Representative E. H. McMichael, of Marion; Dr. A. J. S. Stovall, of Elbert; Hon. John C. Foster, of Floyd, and Hon. John J. Cheney, of Cobb.

SULZER DARES MURPHY TO PRODUCE HIS PROOF

New York Governor Says He Wants Murphy, Not a Tool, to Prove Charges

(By Associated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., June 23.—Governor Sulzer added another chapter today to the Sulzer-Murphy-Curtis controversy, issuing statement in reply to those given out yesterday by Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, and George M. Curtis, of New York. The governor says:

"I want Mr. Murphy and his co-conspirators to produce as quickly as they can all the other libelous stuff they say they have on me which they have threatened me with because I refused to do what they wanted. I want Murphy to do this—not some irresponsible tool. I will answer.

"However, I don't want the people of the state to have their attention diverted from the main question of direct primaries now pending in the extraordinary session of the legislature by the bitter and outrageous and unfounded attacks upon myself.

"Mr. Murphy beat the direct primary bill in the last session of the legislature. He can't deny it. Let him ask him to take his hands off the legislature and let the representatives of the people pass the direct primary bill."

Concerning Mr. Curtis, who still maintains that an effort was made to indict Governor Sulzer for perjury in Wisconsin relative to the latter's suit to recover counsel fees in a suit brought by a granddaughter to break the will of John Anderson, a millionaire tobacco manufacturer, the governor said Curtis is a "notoriety seeker," and "the tool of the political conspirators who are trying to ruin me because I refuse to do their bidding."

PENFIELD TO GET CHOICE OF DIPLOMATIC POSTS?

New Yorker Reported to Have Been Tendered Posts in France, Germany or Russia

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Speculation was caused in diplomatic circles when it was learned today that Frederic C. Penfield, of New York, was to have a special audience with President Wilson. The opinion was formed that the president would offer Mr. Penfield one of the five embassies yet unfilled. These included France, Germany, Russia, Austria and Turkey.

The speculation was based largely on Mr. Penfield's familiarity with foreign countries and the fact that he has had wide experience in the service of the United States abroad. He was vice consul general at London in 1885; diplomatic agent and consul general to Egypt with the rank of minister resident from 1893 to 1897, and was prominently identified with the negotiations which led to the purchase of all the rights and property from the French company engaged in the digging of the Panama canal. For his good offices in this connection he was given the cross of the Legion of Honor.

Judge Newnan Observes 70th Birthday at Work

Judge W. T. Newman, of the United States court, celebrated his seventieth birthday Monday by working as on any other day.

Throughout the morning he was much busier than usual, however, for he was receiving congratulations from everywhere and everybody in addition to attending to the duties of the court. The cordial wishes of scores and hundreds of friends in Atlanta and other parts of Georgia were tendered personally and by telephone and telegraph.

Only twenty-five years ago, during the first administration of President Cleveland Judge Newman was appointed to the bench of the federal court here.

J. K. Ottley Is Very Much Impressed By Currency Message

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—John K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National bank of Atlanta, was very much impressed with President Wilson's message, which he heard from a private gallery today.

"It was the greatest state paper ever heard," declared Mr. Ottley as he left the house of representatives.

"I will swear by every word the president said. It was evident that he is familiar with the situation in this country with reference to the currency, and it was also apparent that he intends that changes shall be relieved by legislation at this session of congress.

"The address was to the point. The president said just enough, and no more. The guidelines and the manner in which it was delivered by Mr. Wilson fully compensates me for my visit to Washington. I believe that the message will move congress to speedy consideration of the currency."

MARY TRIBBLE YET MAY SURVIVE STRANGE POISON

So Thinks One Physician Who Has Studied Case—No Analysis Reported

Hope for the ultimate recovery of seven-year-old Mary Tribble, said to be slowly dying of colored chalk poisoning, was held out Monday by Dr. Simon L. aKtzoc, who has visited the Tribble home in East Atlanta and made an examination of the child's condition.

Dr. aKtzoff declared Monday that he did not think the girl was suffering from chalk poisoning, but rather that the drug had been taken into her system by eating highly-colored candy. Just the nature of the poison said to form the active principle of the dye in the case of either crayon of candy, he did not set forth.

But the paralysis which has attacked little Mary Tribble's left side, he asserted, was not a symptom of chalk poisoning. He said that he believes the girl's condition could be bettered by putting her body in constant motion and applying hot and cold water to stimulate circulation.

The little girl revived perceptibly on Sunday after a treatment, but later went into convulsions and the family physicians attending her expressed little *hope for her recovery on Monday after*noon.

No one seems to know exactly when the child ate the crayon said to be the cause of her condition, but it is said that little girls in the neighborhood assert that she did eat part of some colored chalk sticks.

Thus far, it is understood, no analysis of a similar piece of crayon has been made to determine the exact kind of poison contained in the dye, but the assumption is that the dye used is of the analine variety.

Dr. E. E. Stone, who has been attending the child since three days after she was taken sick, said Monday that members of the family had made known their intention of having an examination of the chalk made, but, he asserted, such an examination would reveal nothing of great value in the matter of treatment at this advanced stage of the poisoning.

DEATH OF MISS MOORE ACCIDENTAL, SAYS COURT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 23.—That the tragic death of Miss Mary Moore, who was run down by an automobile at York and Dayton streets Thursday night, was accidental and could not be attributed to the criminal recklessness of negligence of Frank Rivers, the colored chauffeur, was the decision of Recorder Schwarz in court this morning.

NON-SUPPORT IS GROUND OF CUYLER DIVORCE PLEA

California Dispatches Confirm Journal's Exclusive Story of Interesting Case

Willful neglect and failure to show consideration for her and her children are the grounds for divorce by Mrs. Grace Barton-Cuyler in a suit recently filed in San Francisco against her husband, Telemon Cruger Smith Cuyler, Atlanta and New York society man.

According to California advices, bearing out in detail The Journal's exclusive story of Sunday, Mrs. Barton-Cuyler, with her two children, has taken residence at the Fairmont hotel in Frisco to await the action of the court. Twice last winter Mr. Cuyler journeyed west to attempt a reconciliation with his wife, it is said, and twice she refused to see him.

While Mrs. Barton-Cuyler has refused quietly to discuss the features of her case, she has let it be known, it is said, that she does not intend to return to her husband nor treat with him in any way excepting in a court room.

Her suit for separation was filed in the superior court of California on April 3 and since that time, it is said, Mr. Cuyler, who is now at his mother's country place, Wayside, Jones county, has evaded summons. It is for this reason, it is asserted, that the California court has authorized advertisements in newspapers in Atlanta, New York, London, Paris and Macon, giving notice to Cuyler that the suit will be tried in October.

Mrs. Cuyler, according to the petition, has asked the court for a total divorce and the custody of her two children, Grace, aged ten, and John, aged five. No alimony feature is made part of the proceedings.

Mrs. Cuyler, who is a daughter of Mrs. John Barton, a wealthy widow of Alameda, Cal., was a bride in her own right, met Telemon Cuyler in New York and married him in 1900. The ceremony was performed at the Waldorf-Astoria and was a society event of prominence. The wedding was attended by many well known Georgians. The Cuylers traveled extensively in Europe and eventually took up a residence there. Mrs. Cuyler told the California court that her husband refused to support her or her children and that she was forced to leave him.

Mr. Cuyler, who has been a unique figure in Atlanta society, was in the city last week greeting friends. He gave no intimation of the estrangement between himself and his wife to those who talked with him, it is said.

He is the son of the late Henry H. Smith, of Atlanta, one time prominent cotton broker. In his early days here Cuyler was known as Telemon Cruger Cuyler Smith. But by legal process his name was changed to Telemon Cruger Smith Cuyler. Lately, it is said, he prefers just Telemon Cuyler. He is a man of many talents, of wide acquaintance and has a hobby for collecting curios.

SENATE CAUCUS REACHES THE METAL SCHEDULE

Democrats Adjourn at Noon to Hear President's Message on Currency

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Hopeful that this would be the last week of preliminary consideration of the tariff bill, the senate Democratic caucus resumed work early today.

Changes in the metal schedule, partly approved Saturday night, came up first, but the caucus was forced to close at noon so that the senators might assemble in the house to hear President Wilson deliver his message on currency reform.

Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, said the revision of the income tax and administrative features will be submitted later today.

SOLICITOR WILL FIX FRANK TRIAL FOR JUNE 30, HE SAYS

Unless "Showing" Is Made in Open Court Why the Case Should Be Deferred, Trial Will Proceed

MONTEEN STOVER AGAIN FIGURES IN THE CASE

Detectives Question Her With View to Attacking Theory That Girl Was Slain on the First Floor

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, it was definitely learned Monday, will set the case of the State against Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, for June 30, and the solicitor will insist that a legal "showing" be made by the defense before a postponement is allowed.

During the day Monday or early on Tuesday morning the court calendar for the week of June 30 will be made up and then a smal larmy of bailiffs and deputies will commence to summon talesmen. Owing to the unusual interest in the case it is probable that more than 150 talesmen will be summoned to the court in order that twelve jurors to try Frank may be picked from them.

COURT WON'T INTERFERE.

It is understood that the court of its own volition will not interfere in the matter, and if a postponement of the case is secured it will be on a "legal showing" made in open court next Monday by the attorneys, who represent the accused man.

The illness of one of counsel or the absence from the city of a material witness or the engagement of counsel in another court, or any one of several other perfectly good excuses constitute legal grounds for the postponement of case, so the uncompromising attitude of the state by no means makes the trial of the case on June 30 a certainty.

Luther Z. Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold, the able attorneys, who represent Frank, will give no intimation of their attitude towards entering into the case next Monday.

The published rumor that John W. Moore, another noted Atlanta lawyer, would assist Attorneys Arnold and Rosser and Herbert Haas in the case is without foundation, according to Mr. Moore and the other attorneys connected with the case.

WITNESS QUESTIONED.

What is believed by the prosecution or Mr. M. Frank to be a refutation of the defense's theory that Mary Phagan was slain at the foot of the stairs on the first floor of the pencil factory, occurred at police headquarters Sunday afternoon, when Jim Conley, the negro, identified Monteen Stover, aged 14, 171 South Forsyth street, as the girl in the raincoat and "easy walkers" who went to the office on the second floor on the 12:05 o'clock car and came down the stairs five or ten minutes later and left the building.

The little Stover girl was taken before Conley in the detective room Sunday and positively identified by the negro, according to the detectives who were present, Chief Lanford and Detectives Campbell and Starnes.

Conley declared that she was the girl he watched while he was hid at the foot of the stairs. The Stover girl entered the building, went up the stairs to the office, stayed there some five or ten minutes, and then came down and went out.

J. C. Hines, who went to headquarters with Walter Rudderth and Mr. Edmundson, pointed out Monteen Stover as the girl whom he saw enter the building.

Mr. Hines, who was present at the alleged identification, said Monday that Miss Stover admitted that she went to the factory at that time to draw her pay, went up the stairs to the second floor and found the office open. She said that she waited around for ten minutes and noticed the clock when she went into the office. It was 12:05, she said. As no one seemed to be around, she asserted, she left the place some time between 12:10 and 12:15 o'clock.

TO SET CASE FOR JUNE 30.

The prosecution believes that this will kill the defense's theory that Mary Phagan was killed at the foot of the

GETTYSBURG FLECKED WITH VETERANS' TENTS

40,000 Confederate and G. A. R. Veterans to Hold Reunion on Battlefield

(By Associated Press.)

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 23.—The hills of Gettysburg, where the armies of Meade and Lee pitched their tents fifty years ago, are flecked today with canvas harbingers of the tented city which will soon arise on the battlefield.

The army of Civil War veterans from the north and the south—40,000 of them—are coming, some few in thread worn uniforms and all without their muskets, to hold a jubilee reunion on the fiftieth anniversary of the battle.

Some of the scouts are already here; the advance guard will bivouac on the field within a week; the rank and file will follow them not more than forty-eight hours later.

Every star of the forty-eight in the American flag is expected to have here its own quota of veterans. They will come as the guests of the National government, and of their respective states and territories, which jointly will spend more than a million dollars for their entertainment and comfort. To receive them the government and the state of Pennsylvania have made elaborate plans. One field alone provides for furnishing the veterans more than 800,000 meals.

Pennsylvania has been planning for the celebration of the battle for more than four years. She has appropriated $415,000 as her share of the expense. Congress has appropriated $150,000 to defray the expense of the government's participation ,and named a commission to help carry out the plans. Every state and territory also appointed the general invitation to participate and nearly all of them appropriated money to transport veterans and commissions.

The big camp is pitched on that part of the battlefield which lies southeast of Gettysburg. On nearly 300 acres of contiguous ground 7,000 tents and more are going up under the supervision of the war department. The camp lies partly on the scene of the first day's fighting and is not far from High Water Mark, where Pickett's famous charge shattered against the Union lines.

Five thousand tents have been erected for the exclusive use of the veterans. The camp has been laid out like a city. Each street and each tent has a number, so it will be easy for any veteran to look up a former comrade or foe. In the center of the camp will be the headquarters of the chief quartermaster. The veterans will be encamped according to states.

Although each tent is designed to accommodate twelve men, it has been planned to assign only eight veterans to each, so as to make them as comfortable as possible. Each veteran will have a separate cot, blankets and a mess kit, which will contain a plate, cup, knife, fork and spoon and will become his personal property when he breaks camp. Each tent also will have two hand basins, a water bucket, candles and two lanterns. With the preparation of meals the veterans will have nothing to do. There will be wholesome and substantial and will be served at the ends of the company streets.

Only veterans of the civil war may be provided food, shelter and entertainment within the great camp around the battlefield," reads the announcement of the commission. Therefore, no woman or child or any man not a veteran will be given food, shelter or entertainment. No veteran should bring to Gettysburg any member of his family or other person for whom he will have to obtain food and quarters outside the camp unless all arrangements therefor have first been made for them before he or they come to Gettysburg."

No veteran will be permitted to bring a trunk into camp, his baggage being restricted to that which he can easily carry himself. The care of it will rest with him.

The principal events of the celebration will be held on July 1, 2 and 4, but in order to avoid congestion of traffic on the railroads and confusion at Gettysburg, the camp will be opened on Sunday evening, June 29, the first meal to be served at supper time. Twenty meals will be served to each veteran during the week if he is in camp that long, and the camp will come to an end after breakfast on Sunday, July 6.

Veterans have planned to visit historic places in and about the great area where the battle was fought and where skirmishes occurred that led up to it, and to hold reunions. The great celebration will be in full swing on the morning of July 1, marking fifty years to the day from the time the battle opened to the west of the town.

The program for the four big days is briefly as follows:

July 1.—Veterans' Day.—Appropriate exercises under the joint direction of the Pennsylvania commission and the commanders-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans.

July 2.—Military Day.—Under the direction of the chief of staff of the United States army.

July 3.—Civic Day.—Under the direction of the governor of Pennsylvania, presiding and participated in by the governors of the states, if they so desire. Addresses and music.

July 4.—National Day.—Patriotic exercises, orations, with fireworks in the evening.

The exercises will be held in a great tent, one of the largest in the United States, capable of accommodating about 15,000 persons. This tent is at the southern end of the camp, beside the Emmitsburg road, down which Lee's army went after the close of the three days' battle.

Except for the time the main exercises are being held, the big tent will be given over to the veterans to hold such reunions as they may arrange. The tent is so constructed that it can be sub-divided into many sections for these reunions. For the identification of old soldiers who may not be easily recognized by former comrades because of the changes wrought by the hand of Time, each veteran is expected to wear his army, corps, division, brigade, regimental and society badges.

After the principal exercises on July 4, there is no schedule of events except such as may be arranged by the veterans themselves in the way of reunions and short excursions about the fields and to neighboring places.

United States troops, whose camp will adjoin that of the veterans, will do constant police duty. Boy scouts will act as guides. Pennsylvania's state police also will be on duty.

The United States government has erected a mammoth field hospital close to the camp, fully equipped. The state also will have its hospital tents and the state commissioner of health will keep deputies in camp for constant inspection work. The state fire marshal, in addition, has assigned men to the camp and steps have been taken to prevent fires and to extinguish them promptly should any occur.

The commissary department will be under the direct charge of regular army officers and will be one of the most complete ever organized for a camp. There will be nearly 800 cooks; 125 bakers will furnish fresh bread every day for the big army.

The greatest care has been taken in arranging for the twenty meals that will be served during the week. The menu was written with due regard for the age of the men. It will be quite different from the hard tack and coffee and the occasional portion of bean soup or "sow belly" given the soldiers in the historic days of fifty years ago. The town of Gettysburg, which has a population a little more than 4,000, will be unable to care for the influx of visitors and thousands of them will be coming in from adjoining towns and cities as far away as Harrisburg and York. Practically every private house in Gettysburg will be turned into a boarding house. Many veterans who desire to attend the reunion and want to bring members of their families have been unable to obtain accommodations and must leave them behind.

Specially invited guests of the state and national governments will be given quarters in the seminary west of Gettysburg and in the building of Pennsylvania college north of the town.

BY RALPH SMITH.

It is understood that Mr. Berner had a talk with Attorney General McReynolds, but it is not known whether his district attorneyship was discussed.

Mr. Berner was strongly indorsed for the position.

Henry C. Jones Dead; Was Last Survivor Confederate Congress

(By Associated Press.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 21.—Judge Henry C. Jones, 94 years old, died at his home at Florence, Ala., at 1 o'clock this morning. He was the last surviving member of the Confederate congress, although, prior to the breaking out of hostilities he was the leading anti-secessionist of the state. He was a prominent member of the state legislature prior to the war, and voted against secession in the Alabama legislature, carrying his opposition so far as to refuse to sign the ordinance after it had been overwhelmingly passed.

While still opposing secession, he was elected a member of the Confederate congress after it was a one-chamber body in Montgomery. When the congress was removed to Richmond, and the senate chamber was added, Judge Jones was a member of the congress that provided the form of government for "the storm cradled nation that fell."

Judge Jones was very intimate with Jefferson Davis, and accompanied him on a number of his political speaking tours. When the war broke out he engaged in the manufacture of clothing for the soldiers, and for many years after the war he was the leading attorney of the state. He was a prominent figure in Alabama politics both before and after the war and held many positions of honor and trust. He was always a commanding figure in Democratic conventions, but of recent years his infirmities removed him from the fields of activity.

Judge Jones was born in Franklin county, this state, and lived all his life in what is known as the Tennessee valley, the major portion of his life being spent in Lauderdale county. For two-thirds of a century he was a conspicuous figure in public life in that valley, and was considered a fine exponent of the high minded, courageous and aggressive public ma nof the Old South.

FRISCO MAY SOON WIN FIGHT FOR WATER SUPPLY

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The twelve-year fight of San Francisco for a water supply from the Sierra Nevadas may be won soon, if the plans of the house public lands committee are carried out.

The $75,000,000 project, which the San Francisco officials claim to be vital to the present and future welfare of the city, contemplates a lake three miles long and half a mile wide in the picturesque Hetch-Hetchy basin in the Yosemite national reservoir. The right of way would include fourteen miles of high pressure tunnel with a daily supply of 400,000,000 gallons to supply San Francisco and the San Francisco peninsula, Berkeley, Alameda and adjacent sections.

City Engineer O'Shaughnessy, City Clerk Dunnigan and City Attorney Long, representing San Francisco, as well as others interested in the project, presented their case at another hearing today before the committee.

SEEING IS BELIEVING; RELIGION IN "MOVIES"

CHICAGO, June 23.—A three months' "successful experiment" of teaching the Bible by moving pictures ended last night at the University Congregational church.

During that time dozens of picture plays of a religious nature, scenes from the Holy Land and other lands were thrown on the screen and their lesson explained to the audience.

"We believe that children learn better through the eye than through the ear," said the Rev. Oscar C. Helmin, the pastor, after closing for the summer, the theater which was built in the Sunday school room.

"While the films have not been all that we desired, we expect better ones next year. We not only have increased the attendance, but the old children are staying. They are interested."

YEGGMEN ROB POSTOFFICE; P. M. HELD TO ACCOUNT

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Because yeggmen cracked the safe in the Bullocksville postoffice the government wants to hold R. A. Dunn, the postmaster, responsible for the loss which amounted to about $600.

W. R. Jones, of Greenville, came to town today to intercede in behalf of Postmaster Dunn. Congressman Adamson, of the Fourth district, joined with him, and together they went to see the postmaster general about the matter. They hope to have Dunn relieved of the payment for which he was in no way accountable. The postoffice safe was cracked with nitroglycerin.

NINE U. S. ENGINEERS DIE IN MISSISSIPPI RIVER

Only One Engineer and Four Deck Hands Survive When Boat Capsizes

(By Associated Press.)

NEW MADRID, Mo., June 23.—Nine of a party of fourteen United States engineers and other government employes were drowned near New Madrid late yesterday, when the United States survey boat Beaver, which the party was aboard, capsized during a windstorm.

Those drowned are:

C. S. WILLIAMSON, chief engineer, Mason, O.

J. M. M'CONNELL, of Memphis, a recent graduate of the law department of Cornell university.

CAPTAIN LAMB, pilot.

A. D. COSTON, engineer.

HARRY SHERRELL, mate, Cottonwood, Tenn.

PHIL WRAY, Jackson, Tenn.

— FREEMAN, deck hand.

Two rodmen, names not known.

The body of Chief Engineer Williamson has not been located. None of the others has been found.

Mr. Williamson had been stationed at Memphis for several years.

J. H. Miller, civil engineer, of Millersburg, Ky., and four deck hands were the others of the party who reached the bank in safety.

The Beaver, a small craft of the canal boat type, left Memphis last Friday for Snakey Bend, in the Mississippi river, about seven miles north of New Madrid, where a survey was to be made preliminary to the construction of revetments.

The boat had proceeded to a point about four miles above this city and was near midstream when the storm broke with but little warning. Before the craft could be made ready to brave the wind it was overturned and sank. Those drowned presumably were caught in the wreckage and driven down with the boat. Williamson's body floated to the surface within an hour.

Snakey Bend is in a remote section, and until the return of boats sent from this city further details are improbable.

The United States steamer Chisca left Memphis early last night for the scene of the accident to search for the bodies.

When the storm broke the Beaver was making a hurried run back to New Madrid to secure medical attention for McConnell, who had been taken suddenly ill; and was within sight of a quarterboat, anchored near this city, when the wind tipped the boat over. Skiffs which put out from the quarterboat rescued Miller and the four deck hands.

(By Associated Press.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 23.—Kenneth Lewis, aged twenty-two; Lren Walker, eighteen, and May Secrist, all of Kansas City, Kan., and a young woman, name unknown, were thrown into the Missouri river near Parkville, Mo., when a motorboat in which the four were riding was capsized late Sunday. They were swept down the stream and it is believed all were drowned.

Two Boys Drowned in the Mad Whirlpool of Niagara

(By Associated Press.)

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 23.—Niagara Falls, went to their death in a small boat in the mad whirlpool below the whirlpool rapids, while hundreds of men watched, helpless, from the shore.

The boys were playing in a flat bottom scow half a mile above the rapids when the rope holding the boat broke and they were carried out into the stream and down the river.

Until the boat reached midstream it made little progress. After it passed the bridges the current carried it swiftly toward the rapids. The bridgemen did not see the boat until it was close at hand. Then they called fire headquarters and two companies of firemen were sent to save the lads if possible.

Hundreds swarmed to the river banks in a vain effort at rescue. The boys, realizing their fate, stood up as the boat neared the edge of the roaring whirlpool and shook hands in farewell. A second later they were engulfed by a great wave in the rapids. The boat shot out of sight. One of the boys was seen for a moment struggling in the rushing waters. Neither body has been recovered.

Bailey Arrested For Selling His Booze to Booze

Davenport Bailey, colored, was arrested on Decatur street Saturday night for selling booze to Booze, or, if you prefer it, disposing of liquor to one Garrett Booze for monetary consideration.

Davenport was "pinched" in the very act of slipping a bottle of the stuff to his colored companion of the Bacchic cognomen. Both were arrested and taken to police headquarters.

"What is your name?" said the desk sergeant to Garrett.

"Booze, sah," grinned the darky.

"Great Scott," murmured the sergeant, "that was certainly taking coals to Castle with a vengeance!"

DELEGATES LEAVE FOR MEETING OF MECHANICS

ANNISTON, Ala., June 23.—W. F. McCartney, of this city, national representative from Alabama to the national council of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, left Saturday for Fabyan, N. H., to attend the biennial session of that body, which will convene on Tuesday, June 24. The only other representative from this state will be A. D. Kirby, of Huntsville, former representative in the legislature. W. L. Humphrey, a member of the board of control of the insurance department, will also attend from Huntsville.

No Information About Drowning Obtainable Yet

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 23.—No information was obtainable today from the scene of the drowning of nine members of a United States engineer's party late yesterday at Snaky Bend, about five miles below New Madrid, Mo., on the Mississippi river.

The latest reports last night indicated that the body of Chief Engineer C. S. Williamson, of Memphis, was the only one recovered.

Major Markham, in charge of the Memphis district, reported today that telephone wires were down along the river in Arkansas, because of yesterday's storm. The nearest telegraph line is New Madrid, but no wires were working to that town.

The United States teamer Chisca, which left Memphis last night for the scene of the accident, to aid in recovering the bodies, is expected to get in communication with the Memphis office some time today.

MEMBERS OF OLD GUARD AROUND BANQUET BOARD

"Stay-at-Homes" Reception to Those Who Made Eastern Trip

A reception given by the "stay-at-homes" of the Old Guard to those members of the organization who took the recent trip through the east, was an eventful affair of Saturday night at the Cafe Durand.

All members, young and old, "stay-at-homes" and "go-aways," were on hand in regular uniform, minus side-arms. It was an informal banquet which everyone enjoyed and which was profitable as well as pleasant.

A complete account of the trip through the east was given by the participants, and some interesting and amusing anecdotes which grew out of it were related. Plans were made to make the Old Guard a bigger and better organization in the future than ever before, to make it "more worth while" and more permanent.

It was decided to increase the membership to 200. All of the present members will meet next Sunday afternoon at the auditorium in full dress and thence march to the capitol building to have their picture taken.

Acting as toastmaster at Saurday night's banquet was Colonel George M. Napier. No better could have been selected, for the Colonel was the life and soul of the whole affair. The speakers in the order in which they addressed the gathering were Colonel F. J. Paxon, Colonel J. F. Burk, J. R. Smith, Harry son Jones, Dr. E. L. Conley, Colonel J. T. Van Orsdale, Captain H. L. Crumley and Mayor James G. Woodward.

NEGRESS SHOT AS END OF ROW OVER A CAT

R. L. Griffin's Son Killed Cat, Owner, Raising Disturbance, Is Shot

As the result of the killing of a cat that had been stealing his chickens, R. L. Griffin, of 21 Markham street, fired a shotgun at Mamie Rice, a negress, Sunday morning. The woman was carried to Grady hospital, and though she is considered in a serious condition she is expected to recover.

According to the police, the negress had become enraged because a young son of Griffin had killed her cat when he caught it making depredations on his chicken yard. She entered the back yard of the Griffins, Sunday, and began cursing Mrs. Griffin, who was standing on the back porch. The husband, hearing the noise, went out and remonstrated with the woman to make her leave. She is alleged then to have turned her abuse upon him, when he went into the house and returning with the same gun that had been used to kill the cat, fired the load into her.

Griffin was arrested and taken to police headquarters, where he was charged with assault with intent to murder.

CROWDS HEAR DR. RILEY PREACH AT TABERNACLE

A hot Sunday and a downpour of rain in the afternoon did not keep the crowds from the Baptist Tabernacle on Sunday. Four times Dr. Riley, the evangelist, preached. At 10 a. m. he talked before the Sunday school, when 160 boys, girls, young men and women responded to his appeal. At the morning service a large number were received for baptism and the ordinance of baptism will be administered at the Wednesday evening service.

On Monday no meetings will be held at the Tabernacle until 8 o'clock in the evening. On Tuesday there will be meetings at 6:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. There has been a great deal of interest in the series Dr. Riley has been preaching on "The Second Coming." He will finish this series at the early Tuesday morning service, speaking on "The Millennium." His theme Monday night is to be "Confession and Absolution."

VENUS' RIVAL MAY SWIM AND DIVE AT PIEDMONT

"Ideal" and a cup she won.

"Ideal," the champion lady fancy swimmer and acrobatic diver of the world, who is at the Forsyth theater this week, may give a public exhibition at Piedmont park.

Hugh Cordoza, manager of the Forsyth, has taken the matter up with Park Manager Carey, and hopes to be able to make the necessary arrangements.

A bathing place better suited for a public exhibition could not be found. In the first place, the water is clear and pure, being the same as the drinking water of the city. And the plan of the bathing place is such that hundreds of people could witness "Ideal's" performance. They could see her from the verandah of the refreshment stand and bath house, from the benches on the terrace around the swimming enclosure, from the bridge, and from the shores of the lake for a great distance.

"Ideal" lays claim to be the most perfectly formed woman in the world, and this claim is supported by Prof. John Aldrich, of Columbia university, who has taken her measurements and compared them with the measurements of the classic Venus.

Th comparison, as certified by Professor Aldrich, is as follows:

	"Ideal"	Venus

NO SECRET ABOUT WOMAN'S BEAUTY

The flashing eye, the elastic step and the brilliant complexion are never companions of organic troubles; but it is the distressed expression, aches and pains, faintness, dizziness, that bearing down feeling, and the blues that are the telltale symptoms. If such women would only remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes such distressing symptoms, womanly beauty would be no longer a secret.—(Advt.)

(By Associated Press.)

PROLONGING LIFE IN BRIGHT'S DISEASE

It is hard for physicians who have had nothing but failure in chronic Bright's Disease to believe that there is such a thing as recovery and many doubtless honestly feel that patients reporting recoveries under Fulton's Renal Compound are but temporarily benefited. Let us for a moment refer to the case of the daughter of the late Rev. N. W. Spalding, former U. S. Sub-Treasurer of San Francisco.

After her father "had spent ten thousand dollars" in efforts to cure her and the dropsy came and the end looked near she was put on Fulton's Renal Compound. To use the words of the physician, let us say that she was "temporarily benefited." We must now stretch "temporary" to twenty years, for it was twenty years ago, and she was living and attending to her household duties at last advices, in January, 1912.

The case of a well known editor of San Francisco, whose address we will give to anyone who cares to write, was declared to be hopeless. He has been editing his paper for twelve years since his "temporary improvement." He believes he is well and certainly looks like it.

In view of case after case like the above, if you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at Edmondson Drug Co., 11 North Broad street, and 104 North Pryor street, Atlanta, Ga.

For pamphlet on our investigation into the curability of Bright's Disease, write John J. Collins Co., San Francisco.

MUNICIPAL COURT BILL DISCUSSED BY LAWYERS

Several Amendments Proposed—Committee Given Full Power to Act

The bill which will be introduced in the state legislature to establish a municipal court in Atlanta to take the place of the various justice of the peace courts was the subject of discussion at an especial meeting of the Atlanta Bar association, Monday.

The only action of the association was the passage of a resolution giving the committee which drafted the bill full authority to represent the association and to entertain and act upon any suggestions for changes or amendments, which may be brought forward by the individual members of the association.

Several amendments to the bill were offered at the meeting by Attorney Alex Stephens. Th principal of these amendments was to the effect that the five judges of the municipal court be elected directly by the people of Atlanta. The bill, as drafted, provides for the election by the superior court judges of the judges of the municipal courts.

The bill as drafted provides for the removal of the municipal court judges by the judges of the superior court, and Mr. Stevens would change this, and make it so municipal court judges could be removed from office only by impeachment, as are the judges of the higher courts.

In addition he would increase the jurisdiction of the municipal court from $500 to $1,000.

The committee which drafted the bill, and has been given full power by the bar association to incorporate into it any amendments considered necessary or to veto proposed changes, is composed of the following attorneys: Walter McElreath, Spencer R. Atkinson, Arthur G. Powell Van Astor Batchelor, Edgar Watkins, Shepard Bryan, Linton C. Hopkins, Lee M. Jordan, Arminius Wright, Jesse M. Wood, Arthur Heyman, William A. Fuller.

The proposed court can be created by virtue of the amendment to the constitution of 1912 providing for the abolition of the justice courts in cities of more than 50,000 inhabitants.

W. H. Terrell suggested at the bar meeting that the representatives in the legislature of DeKalb county be conferred with about the bill as a part of DeKalb is included in the corporate limits of Atlanta, and opposition from the members from that county to the measure is feared.

MAYOR STILL HOLDS UP CREMATORY CONTRACT

Insists It Must Contain No Reference to Contract Overruled by Supreme Court

Mayor Woodward has not yet finished his examination of the crematory contract submitted to him last week by W. D. Ellis, Jr., the assistant city attorney, and it may be several days before he is through with it.

He stated, however, from what he has already seen of the contract he is prepared to say he does not like it and will insist that the whoe basis of the contract be changed.

"In every contract they have drawn since the supreme court held the original contract to be illegal, they have harked back to the original contract," he said Monday. "My contention is that the new contract must contain no reference to the original contract, because the original contrat is now a dead letter. In other words, I want a contract that is out new from the whole cloth. That is the only kind of contract, in my opinion, that would enable the city to recover from the bonding company, should the plant fail to fulfill its guarantees. They will have to draw such a contract before I will sign it."

The mayor said he understood that the supreme court's decision was entered on the superior court records Monday morning, thereby rendering operative the injunction against further work on the plant.

"In my opinion this means the Destructor company cannot continue work on the plant, if anybody should object, even though council did pass a special resolution authorizing the company to go ahead," said the mayor. "But I won't press this point, as I have decided to oppose the crematory no further, provided they make a contract suitable to me."

Wife Says Dentist In a Rage Used His Walking Cane on Her

Mrs. Kathryn Speer, of 21 Ashby street, filed suit for divorce Monday morning in the superior court and asked allmony also from Dr. Thomas B. Speer, a dentist.

Mrs. Speer charges that on June 20 her husband came home at 2 o'clock in the morning in a "towering rage," and brutally assaulted her, striking her over the head with his walking cane.

The Speers were married in Kentucky in 1908. The wife charges that she has been treated cruelly on other occasions, as well as June 20, and that frequently her husband uses language not fit for her to hear.

Mrs. Speer asks the court's injunction to restrain her husband from disposing of any of his property until her allmony rights have been settled. They have no children.

$25,000 IMPROVEMENTS ON THE PIEDMONT HOTEL

Hostelry Is Being Remodeled Throughout—Color Scheme in Dining Rooms Changed

Improvements aggregating $25,000 are under way on the Piedmont hotel. The entire structure is being repainted both inside and out, the rooms are being repapered and new furniture is being installed.

A noticeable change is in the color scheme in the main dining room on the Luckie street side. The work was commenced over a week ago, and has gone on without inconvenience to the guests.

The dark background that has had a tendency to hide the mural decorations on the side walls and ceiling is being changed to a rich cream and brings out the figures to such an extent that one is led to believe that the paintings themselves have been retouched.

After the work in this room is finished the same general changes will be made in the dining room on the Peachtree street side, and the lobby also is to be made more attractive. The heavy leather chairs have been replaced by cool wicker ones.

The work in the guest rooms is progressing as fast as the rooms are vacant long enough for the work to be completed.

MOIST ATMOSPHERE MAKES THINGS HOT

With prospects for a slight shower during the afternoon, Atlanta entered Monday morning upon what promised to be another exceedingly hot week. The prediction at the weather bureau was for continual showers for the next few days, but with an atmosphere so humid that the heat would seem greater than the figures on the thermometer warranted.

Sunday the mercury reached 90 degrees as its highest mark for the day, going down as low as 50 Sunday night. Shortly after noon Monday the temperature was 87, and it appeared that again 90 would be the highest for the day.

FLAMES DESTROY STOCK OF HAT STORE SUNDAY

IXL Hat Store on West Mitchell Street Gave Firemen a Hard Fight

Fire which was discovered by a passing citizen shortly after 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the store of the IXL Hat company, 4 West Mitchell street, was extinguished by the city fire department after some hard and efficient work.

The stock of the hat store was a complete loss, but the spread of flames was checked in time to confine the fire to the one building. Only a thin partition separated this store from the store of The Crown Tailoring company, next door, and entrance to it was forced by the fire fighters, who spread tarpaulins over the entire stock.

The building occupied by the hat company was owned by S. S. Wood, and the Rhodes-Wood Furniture company occupied the two upper stories. That company suffered no damage.

HOME FOR OLD WOMEN TO LAY CORNERSTONE

Public Is Invited to Attend Interesting Exercises on Thursday Afternoon

The cornerstone of the Home for Old Women, in West End, will be laid next Thursday afternoon, June 26, at 5 o'clock.

The Masons will conduct the ceremonies, after which the ladies of the home will serve lunch on the lawn. The public is invited, and a special invitation is extended to the ministers of the city.

The Home for Old Women was founded eight years ago, and from a comparatively small beginning it has grown to be one of the largest charitable institutions in the city.

The grotesque and vulgar modern dances find no favor at court, and the Prince of Wales and his brothers and sisters have been taught not only the ordinary ballroom dances but the minuet and gavotte, whilst the prince is an adept at the hornpipe dance, as was the king when a sailor.

GRADY'S DOORS SHUT TO OUT-OF-TOWN CHARITY

Imposition Grows Too Heavy, Says Supt. Summerall—Is Atlanta's Institution

Declaring that nearly every county in Georgia and surrounding states attempts to impose upon Atlanta by sending here all their destitute sick, Dr. W. B. Summerall, superintendent of the Grady hospital, announced Monday morning that in the future no more charity patients from out of town will be accepted at the local institution.

Dr. Summerall was prompted by the case of Ernest Harris, aged thirty-three, who was sent here from Warwick, Ga., Monday. Harris is suffering from a contagious disease. He arrived in Atlanta with only money enough to hire a conveyance to take him to the hospital.

After an investigation, Dr. Summerall refused him admittance to the hospital. The man probably will be sent back to his home.

"The line has arrived when it taxes all of our facilities to take care of local charity patients," said Dr. Summerall to a Journal representative. "It is impossible for us to receive patients from elsewhere.

"Every town in this and nearby states seems to be under the impression that we have a big free hospital here and are always ready to accept patients. We have contended with this for months, but we now have our hands full to care for the sick of Atlanta, and to take cases from elsewhere is an utter impossibility.

"It is not this one case that matters. Every week two or three sufferers, some of them incurable, are sent to Atlanta. We have treated them as best we could.

"If we continued to receive outside charity patients at the rate they have been arriving for the past few months every ward in the hospital would be filled to capacity in ninety days and there would be no room for local patients.

"The state of Georgia does not contribute one penny toward the maintenance of this institution. The city of Atlanta pays $100,000 a year."

NEGROES OF ATLANTA ORGANIZE OWN BANK

A new Atlanta bank, to be owned and officered by negroes, obtained a charter from Secretary of State Philip Cook Monday morning. This bank is to be known as the Atlanta State Savings bank, and it will have a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are J. O. Ross, William Driskell, David T. Howard, H. E. Perry, C. C. Cater and others.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Judge Vinson, of Milledgeville, May Be Candidate for Congress.

Judge Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, former member of the house from Baldwin, came to Atlanta Sunday to work in the interest of his fellow-townsman, Judge John T. Allen, who is a candidate for president of the senate.

Judge Vinson is widely acquainted and popular with the politicians throughout the state. In the event that Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick does not seek re-election as the Tenth district's representative in the national house, Judge Vinson will in all likelihood be a candidate for that office in the primary of 1914.

Sheppard, of Sumter, Says That Speakership Race is in Doubt.

Hon. J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter, one of the candidates for speaker of the house, arrived in Atlanta Sunday evening and was warmly greeted by the members of the legislature who had preceded him here. Mr. Sheppard gives it as his tip that the speakership race is in considerable doubt.

"Neither of the three candidates," he said, "has this place sewed up, as has been claimed by some. Those members of the house who have pledged themselves are pretty well divided up among the candidates and a very large number have not yet signified just what their intentions are. I am in the race to win and I confidently expect to be victorious."

Vivian Stanley Expects to Land The Postmastership at Dublin.

"As far as I am able to judge, my race for the postmastership at Dublin is assuming fine shape," declared Vivian Stanley, the well known Laurens county editor, Monday morning. "I believe that whatever opposition there has been to my nomination will soon e withdrawn; and at any rate I am encouraged in the hope that my appointment will be announced very shortly."

Mr. Stanley is in Atlanta in the interest of Dan Hughes, son of Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, who is seeking the place of assistant commissioner of agriculture under Commissioner-elect J. D. Price, and who appears to have excellent chances of landing the appointment.

Colonel Thomas G. Hudson is Working for Allen and Burwell.

No political gathering in Georgia would be altogether complete without the presence of Thomas G. Hudson, of Americus, former commissioner of agriculture. "Colonel Tom" can always be found in the thick of activities wherever and wherever there is any political maneuvering, and in justice to him it should be stated that he is almost always looking after the interests of his friends.

Colonel Hudson is in Atlanta shaking hands with the members of the house and senate and doing all he can to aid his friend Judge John T. Allen, in his race for president of the senate, and to boost Hon. W. H. Burwell, candidate for speaker of the house. Few men in Georgia have a wider acquaintance than Mr. Hudson.

Four Candidates are Seeking Election as Speaker Pro Tem.

Second only—importance to the race for speaker in the house is the contest for speaker pro tem. There are four candidates in this race—Hon. E. McMichael, of Marion; Dr. A. S. J. Stovall, of Elbert; Hon. John C. Foster, of Floyd, and Hon. John P. Cheney, of Cobb.

These candidates are very busy canvassing for votes among the membership of the house and it is impossible at this writing to predict who will win, although Mr. Michael makes the confident claim that he has sufficient pledges to insure his election on the first ballot.

His One Ambition is to Hold His Place as House Messenger

"Uncle" Dan Paulk, of Fitzgerald, the veteran messenger of the house, reached Atlanta late Sunday evening. *He was wearing his accustomed good-*natured smile and greeting old friends with characteristic cordiality.

"All who wish may run for president of the senate and speaker of the house," he said, "but all I want is to succeed myself as messenger of the house and there seems precious little likelihood that I'll not get my wish."

Browning, of Bleckley, is Kindly Disposed to New County Movements.

Advocates of new county propositions will have at least one friend in this year's house of representatives. There may, of course, be others, many of them, but any new county scheme possessing merit will assuredly receive the careful attention of Hon. Leo H. Browning, representative from Bleckley county.

Bleckley was created last year, after *a hard fight at three sessions of the leg*islature, and the section which it embraces has improved and prospered to such an extent during the six months since its creation that Mr. Browning and the other citizens of Bleckley are inclined to take a sympathetic view of the efforts of other sections to create new counties.

A New Child Labor Measure Will Be Introduced This Year.

A strong effort to increase the age limit of children employed in the factories of the state will be made at this session of the general assembly. Those interested in providing further restrictions upon child labor have conferred with the representatives of the Georgia Textile Manufacturers' association and with other leading manufacturers, and it is said they are in accord with the provisions of a bill prepared by Hon. Hooper Alexander, former member of the house from Fulton.

This bill will fix the age limit for children employed in factories and commercial institutions at twelve years in 1914, thirteen years in 1915 and fourteen years in 1916. Sociologists and labor organizations are very much interested in prohibiting the employment of young children in factories and, it is said, they will have sympathetic co-operation of the manufacturers.

J. D. Price Has Not Yet Selected His Assistant.

Hon. J. D. Price, of Farmington, commissioner of agriculture, arrived in Atlanta Monday morning and spent a large portion of the day shaking hands with members of the general assembly and other state politicians.

Mr. Price declares that he has not yet definitely determined whom he will appoint as asistant commissioner. He expects to arrive at a decision within the next two or three days, as he will assume office next Monday.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION.

Frank J. Cohen, a salesman, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in the federal court, Monday. His liabilities are $1,608 and his assets $201.

Only One Legislator Will Have His Seat Contested.

So far as is known, only one member of the 1913-14 general assembly is to have his right to a seat contested. He is Hon. Douglas S. McArthur, representative of the new county of Wheeler. No one is seeking Mr. McArthur's seat and no point is made on the fact that he was elected, but the contest is based on the fact that his election was not legal because it was not held on the third Wednesday in October, 1912, the date fixed by law for the general state election.

Wheeler county had not been created at that time. The constitutional amendment providing for its creation was not ratified until the date of the national election, November 4. It was therefore impossible for Wheeler county to have chosen its representative on the third Wednesday in October.

Mrs. McArthur was victorious in the election which was held on January 7, 1913. He explains the contest by stating that he is opposed by a faction led by former Representative W. B. Kent, who is now secretary of Wheeler county. This faction, says Mr. McArthur, is willing for the county to go without representation rather than that he should be seated.

*There is little doubt as to the legisla*ture putting the O. K. on Mr. McArtiur's election, for it has been customary in the past for newly-created counties to hold their elections after the regular general election.

Hon. Leo H. Browning, representative of the new county of Bleckley, was elected in the same manner, but no question is raised as to the legality of the election.

Anti-Saloon League to Discuss Desired Legislation.

At Wesley Memorial church Monday evening, officials of the Georgia Anti-Saloon league will meet to discuss the prohibition measures while bthe league hopes to see enacted into law at this session of the general assembly.

The league is supporting a movement to outlaw near-beer and abolish locker clubs. The general situation will be discussed at the meeting Monday evening and plans will be made for the legislative campaign.

COUNTY TAX PAYERS ARE SLOW TO MAKE RETURNS

Every Delinquent Increases the Rate Per Capita, the Receiver Explains

Just one more week is left within which county tax payers may return their taxes in order to make up the budget for next year and thereby fix the tax rate. T. M. Armistead calculated Monday morning that no less than 10,000 people in this county so far have failed to give in their taxes.

"The people are very slow in making their county tax returns," said he Monday. "The tax rate is made from the amount of the digest which is gotten up by the tax receiver. Those who fail to make returns to the tax receiver's office increase the tax rate in proportion to the amount of property they return. Delinquents not only raise the rate for themselves but all those who make returns in due time."

Mr. Armistead says that if people only understood how important it is to give the county officials an estimate of what the budget would be, which would then give the officers an idea of what to make the rate per capita to allow for expenditures, salaries, etc., they would be more considerate and make aif effort to give in their taxes before the time expired. If every one did this, the county tax receiver believes, the officials would be able to cut the rate in half.

F. A. Cantrell Named —

Governor Brown Monday morning appointed F. A. Cantrell, of Calhoun, to represent Gordon county on the board of trustees of the Seventh District Agricultural school. Mr. Cantrell will succeed the late W. R. Rankin, who was also from Calhoun.

WEDNESDAY HALF HOLIDAY TO BE OBSERVED BY MANY SHOPS

Total of 95 Clothing and Shoe Stores Are Listed Now in Agreement to Close Half a Day Each Week During July and August—Leading Tailors of the City Also Join the Movement

More dry goods, men's furnishings and shoe stores, and the principal tailoring establishments of the city as well, have joined the Wednesday half-holiday movement begun by the grocers and butchers recently; and now a large portion of Atlanta's daily business is enlisted to suspend for half a day once each week during the heated term until September, in order that their employees may rest and relax and so maintain their efficiency at a higher standard.

Following are two lists, the first of the dry goods (exclusive of the five big department stores on Whitehall street, which close each Saturday afternoon during the summer), and men's furnishings, and shoe dealers, and the second, of the tailors. The first list includes a number of stores which agreed some days ago to close each Wednesday after July 4, which falls on Friday and will be celebrated as the holiday for the week. ATTENDANCE INCREASES IN 19 SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Total Was 6,382, as Against Total of 5,431 on Corresponding Sunday Last Year

The nineteen Atlanta Sunday schools in the attendance publicity agreement showed a gain of 1,043 pupils Sunday over the corresponding Sunday of last year.

The total attendance was 6,382. The total attendance for the corresponding Sunday last year was 5,341. Thus the average has grown from 281 to 336, a gain of fifty-five pupils per school.

The Sunday school officials say these figures show that a steady, permanent growth is taking place.

The publicity agreement was entered into a few weeks ago. Under the agreement the nineteen Sunday schools publish their attendance every Sunday. The agreement is for three months.

Already the figures have attracted widespread attention, and the Sunday school officials believe the mere publication of the figures will be a stimulus to increased attendance and greater interest.

The figures given out for Sunday by the statistics committee are as follows:

"REPAVE SOUTH PRYOR," SLOGAN OF CITIZENS

Big Mass Meeting Called for Next Thursday Night at 8 o'Clock

"Repave South Pryor street or bust," is the slogan of the South Side Improvement club, and it so reads on a big sign now on the street in front of the McCord Grocery company, corner Georgia avenue and South Pryor street.

This sign also invites all the property owners and interested citizens on the south side, and particularly on and adjacent to South Pryor street, to attend a big meeting to be held at the Fair Street school building on next Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

At a largely attended meeting Friday night at the home of R. B. Deavors, 488 South Pryor, an active and earnest campaign was decided upon in order to accomplish the needed improvement.

South Pryor street, from Georgia avenue to Ridge avenue, is one of the roughest and poorest paved streets in the city, and for a long while the property owners along this thoroughfare have been trying to get a new pavement for this street.

At the meeting Friday night Dr. J. H. Bradfield, chairman, stated that for months committees had been acting the matter of a new pavement, and that the time had arrived when he believed it possible to secure the aid of the county in getting the work done.

"As the street now stands," said he, "it is almost impassable, it is so rough. Grocery wagons and other vehicles dodge it all they can, and yet it is the most important street on the south side. It is the only logical outlet to the whole south side section. It leads out directly by the Lakewood property, and should be made a great driveway."

The following citizens were named Friday night from among those present to take the matter actively in hand and present it to the county board, believing that body will repave this street before they move their paving plant when Georgia avenue is finished: J. H. Bradfield, Joseph Franklin, L. Merrill, A. M. Moore, A. Abelson, C. E. Register, Lee F. Dreyfus, H. Weinberg, C. D. Knight, C. L. Dean, R. B. Deavors, C. H. Kelley, Press Huddleston, J. L. McCord, H. Cronheim, Henry Alexander, G. D. Kitchens, Sol Cronheim, John W. Alexander and J. J. L. Poole.

DR. OGDEN DENOUNCES DAY'S FASHION AND ART

Dress and undress were scored heavily by Dr. Dunbar Ogden Monday night in a sermon delivered at the Central Presbyterian church. Women's fashions and the nude in art were denounced heartily by the doctor.

Dress is the symbol of civilization, declared the doctor; and when decency is forgotten in modern fashions the morals of the nation are deteriorating. As to the nude in art, Dr. Ogden declared that exhibitions of nude pictures in Atlanta show windows is a crime and should be punished as such.

The whole sermon was a strong appeal for different ideals in life and art.

THOUGHT MORPHINE WAS HIS MEDICINE

Cleve Morrison, the young man who was taken from his home, 478 East Fair street, early Sunday morning to the Grady hospital, where it was found that he had swallowed nearly a whole bottle of morphine, has recovered.

Morrison declared that the part that he swallowed the morphine in an attempt to take his own life is not true. He was sick, he says, and thought that the morphine bottle contained some medicine he was accustomed to taking.

FATHER CASSERLY SAYS HIS FIRST MASS HERE

Rev. John J. Casserly celebrated his first mass Sunday morning at the Sacred Heart church. He was ordained recently in Galveston, Tex.

Father Casserly, who is a native of Ireland, has been assigned to the Sacred Heart church, of Houston, Tex., and will leave for that charge within a short while. Formerly he was a teacher at Marist college and has numbers of friends who will regret to see him leave Atlanta for other religious fields.

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
GRAND—"Quo Vadis," in pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

The most wonderful achievement yet in photo drama is George Kleine's marvellous production of "Quo Vadis," adapted from Henry Sienkiewicz's novel of the same title and made by the famous Italian company, the Cines. This will continue to be the attraction at the Grand, commencing its second week with matinee Monday and showing thereafter at matinee and night performances daily. This series of pictures makes up a complete evening's entertainment and visualizes all the principal episodes of the famous novel from which it was taken. It embraces romance, tragedy and history, and is the most veracious and instructive photo drama before the public.

The romantic side is furnished by the love story of the handsome and valiant young Roman, Vinitius, for the Christian maid Lygia and the exquisite passion of Petronius and Eunice, his slave. History is supplied in the pictures of Nero and his court and the fullest depths of tragedy are measured by the illustrations of the sufferings of the sturdy band of Christians and the persecutions of Peter and Paul the Apostles. Those who seek dramatic intensity and sensation are amply supplied with the pictures of the gladiatorial combats, the chariot races, the struggle of the giant slave Ursus with the savage bull, the burning of Rome a most vivid and thrilling picture in itself and the awful human torture of the Christians by throwing them to wild beasts and burning them as human torches.

The large cast of characters are portrayed by the foremost actors of the Italian stage and their acting alone is worth more than worth the price of admission.

The spectacle is divided into three acts with eight-minute intermissions.

The performance lasts a little more than two hours, and will begin at half-past 2 every afternoon and at half-past 8 every evening.

One of the best looking bills of vaudeville that have been sought to the Forsyth this summer is the announced attraction for this week. It is a clever combination of variety, including singing and dancing, gymnastics and music, a comedy sketch and a novelty feature.

Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore have been assigned the headling honors because of the excellence of the act and the popularity of the two entertainers here. Miss Vanderbilt won a position in musical comedy that made her a favorite two seasons ago, and in musical comedy she and Mr. Moore established themselves as real stars. They are in vaudeville for a few weeks this summer, and when the regular season ends they will be found in a new musical comedy that is new in preparation. Miss Vanderbilt has a peculiar and popular style of entertainment.

An extra attraction will be "Ideal" the famous diver and swimmer. Prof. John Aldridge, of Columbia University, has declared that "Ideal" is the most perfectly formed woman in the world, and "Ideal" holds the handsome silver cup recently awarded at the International contests to the Champion Lady Swimmer and Diver of the world. The act of "Ideal" goes on the Forsyth stage Monday afternoon. A great tank has been sunk in the stage and a fine exhibition is promised.

The musical feature of the bill will be the offering of the Six Musical Cuttys, a family of brothers and sisters who are expert in instrumental and vocal music, and a comedy sketch will be the contribution of Dorothy Richmond and her company.

Minnie Allen, comedienne will make her first appearance in Atlanta. She is pretty and talented. Doc O'Neal a comedian of a peculiar style, the bill, and the six musicians, a quartet of gymnastic Japs, will be interesting.

Henry S. Jackson, collector of internal revenue, has advised the department at Washington a second time that he is anxious to give way to his successor by June 30.

Mr. Jackson has arranged for a trip abroad for himself and family, and a delay in the appointment of his successor would inconvenience him, he says.

SACRED HARP SINGERS VISIT OLD SOLDIERS

The Sacred Harp singers went to the Old Soldiers' home Sunday afternoon and gave a concert of old-time favorites, including religious hymns and sentimental songs, such as "Annie Laurie," "Bonnie Blue Flag," "Old Black Joe," and "Swanee River."

In addition to the Harpists, who were some 200 strong, quite a crowd of visitors was present, and altogether the old soldiers enjoyed a very delightful afternoon.

STARNES PAYS TRIBUTE TO FESTIVAL CHORUS

Noted Organist Says in One Year It Has Aroused South's Dormant Sense

How Atlanta has accomplished in one year what it took Toronto, Detroit and other American musical centers a decade to bring about is told by Dr. Percy J. Starnes in relating the progress made by the Atlanta Music Festival chorus, which has just disbanded for the summer. Dr. Starnes, who is an Englishman and whose musical career started in all probability before he became Atlanta's city organist, pays a tribute not only to Atlanta's ability to do things, but also to the steadily developing musical appreciation of the southern people.

"I am more than delighted with the showing made by our chorus," says Dr. Starnes. "It has developed far beyond my expectations. I find the material of a much higher grade than I anticipated from a community where choral singing has been at a minimum and where even the churches, generally speaking, are satisfied with the efforts of the quartet or small choir. In past years little sense of the finest choral productions of the great masters a sealed book to the rank and file of Georgia people.

"Yet even under these conditions I have found many able and musically intelligent singers—people who love art for art's sake; and I have found the opinion that the southern people are endowed with a strong natural love for music, but lacking in opportunity and, although owing to the want of advantages in the way of cultivation, these passions have long lain dormant.

"I believe that the years will prove that the southern people, with their generous, warm-hearted natures, are the American counterpart of the music-loving sons and daughters of Italy. To be a musician demands a super-sensitive temperament, a nature removed from ordinary life, a nature that can rise above the common level, and in the inspired works of the great composers can see God. I believe the southern people possess this nature to a large extent, and that, given the opportunity for cultivation, they will become known as the greatest music-loving portion of our great country."

INDIAN TEACHER DEAD; HIT BY AUTO THURSDAY

Thomas Jefferson Died Sunday Night—Coroner Orders Inquest Monday

Thomas Jefferson, aged sixty, said to have been an Indian teacher and a frontier figure in pioneer days, died at the Grady hospital Sunday night as the result of being struck by an automobile Thursday night at the corner of Whitehall and Mitchell streets.

The man was picked up unconscious, and it is believed his skull was crushed. He never regained consciousness. He was struck by an automobile driven by J. L. Hughes, of 350 Peachtree street, and that car, who had attempted to cross the street, leaped from in front of another car. Witnesses declare that the car which was going so slowly that it was stopped in a few feet of where the man was hit. No case has been made for reckless driving. Coroner Donehoo will hold an inquest some time Monday afternoon, and an autopsy will be held Monday morning.

So far the hospital authorities have been unable to locate any relatives of the man. He had lived in Atlanta for some time and always stopped at the Salvation Army hall, with which organization he became very much interested. He will be given a Salvation Army burial.

ITALIAN WORKMAN IS FOUND DEAD ON STREET

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 23.—Covered with blood and with bruises on his face, lying on the ground in Bay street lane, back of 411 Bay street, west, Amillo Cajon, an Italian employed by the Savannah Fish company, was found dead at 3:30 o'clock Saturday morning by John Lupo, foreman of the company.

The quantity of blood around the man and the cuts on his face, together with the fact of finding him there in the dark lane at 3 o'clock in the night, or morning, led the foreman to believe that murder had been done, but investigation showed he died of hemorrhage.

SEEK TO KINDLE INTEREST IN GREAT CHURCH PROJECT

Ministers Are in Fine Baseball Form At Monday's Picnic

"Play ball!" yelled the umpire.

Dr. John E. White, pitching for the First Baptists, wrapped his hands around the sphere, eyed the opposing batter balefully, and snapped a drop over the corner of the pan.

"Strike!" shouted the umpire, as Rev. C. A. Bradley made a vain swipe at the ball with a Louisville slugger. Dr. Ridley frowned, Dr. White grinned, and the game went on.

It was some battle, and it all happened Monday at the waterworks station on Hemphill avenue, when the Baptist ministers of Atlanta foregathered in an old-fashioned picnic and ball game. The ministers had a swell "feed" and a thoroughly enjoyable time.

No small feature of the day was the baseball battle. Dr. John E. White captained one side and pitched against Rev. C. A. Ridley. Both of these well known Atlanta ministers were star hurlers in their college days and by their classy work Monday proved that they had lost none of the old pop and spirit.

George S. Sexton, D. D., shown at the left top, is in Atlanta for the purpose of arousing the interest of local Methodists in the erection of a church in Washington which shall be representative of the south. He, together with Bishop John C. Kilgo, who is shown next to him, is a member of the board of commissioners who were recently appointed to look after this question. Five hundred thousand dollars is required to build the church, says Dr. Sexton. To boost this project Dr. Sexton arranged for a number of prominent ministers to speak in local churches on the subject Sunday morning. Rev. W. R. Hendrix, of the Wesley Memorial church, shown at the bottom, is one of those who spoke.

This is the last of all the Southern's daily trains entering Atlanta to be made a Sunday train. It has been operated for a number of years.

S. H. PHELAN HONORED BY LOCAL BURNS CLUB

Burns Club Members Extend Sympathy to Family in Memorial Resolution

An interesting tribute has been paid to the memory of the late Sidney H. Phelan by the Burns' club of Atlanta, of which he was always an active and popular member.

Donald M. Bain, Joseph Jacobs and Judge Marcus W. Beck formed a committee named by the club to draw the resolutions in memory of the club's departed brother. These resolutions follow:

"Whereas, Our brother, Sidney H. Phelan, has been removed by death from the ranks of the members of this club, which was organized for the purpose, among others, of bringing into close social intercourse and union the admirers and devoted students and lovers of Robert Burns;

"Be it resolved, That in the death of our beloved brother this club has suffered a great and irreparable loss.

"Bringing to all of our meetings and gatherings at the Burns cottage a spirit of enthusiastic admiration for the immortal bard, unwavering loyalty to his memory, a keen appreciation of all that was noble, beautiful and touching in his poetry, he aroused in others a kindred feeling of affectionate regard and appreciation for him whose memory this association venerates and cherishes. Our departed brother was of the same type of men as those to whom Burns in his day was glad to turn for encouragement, friendly sympathy and brotherly love. For the one whom we mourn today was kind-hearted, true to his friends, appreciative of them, generous, open-hearted, speaking at all times the real sentiments of his heart.

"No man that knew him need be told A warmer heart death ne'er made cold.

"He had, at all times, the courage of his own convictions, yet he never failed in tolernace towards the opinions and convictions of others."

"No man could have been freer from bigotry and cant than he, yet few more truly felt that 'This Great Creator to revere must sure become the creature.' He enjoyed the love and confidence of all who knew him. He laid his own great heart in social, friendly intercourse close to the throbbing hearts of those whom he called friends. Well might he have demanded that he be written down as 'one that loved his fellow man.'

"Thus having lived and having died, and, as far as human ken reveals the truth to us, having thus met and fulfilled the obligations which rested upon him as a man, he met and fulfilled the true end of his existence.

"For thus the royal mandate ran When first the human race began: 'The social, friendly, honest man, Whate'er he be,

'Tis he fulfils great nature's plan, And none but he.'"

"Resolved, further, That the members of the Burns club extend to the surviving members of the family of our departed brother our deep sympathy in their great bereavement, the depth of which we to some extent appreciate, grieving as we do from a sense of our own loss.

"Resolved, further, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the secretary of this club to the bereaved family.

SERMON ILLUSTRATED WITH A STEREOPTICAN

Unique Series Announced by Rev. W. R. Hendrix, Wesley Memorial Pastor

A special series of stereopticon slides to cover four services have been obtained by Rev. W. R. Hendrix, pastor of Wesley Memorial church, and will be used on four successive Sundays.

The subject of the first, delivered Sunday, was, "The Impulsions of Love, or the Good Shepherd." The others, in the order in which they will be used, are as follows: "The Days of Youth," on June 29; "America," a patriotic subject for July 4, and "The Man Without the Wedding Garment," July 13.

At the midweek prayer services on Wednesday evenings Mr. Hendrix is using motion pictures very effectively. The program is arranged with a view to making it popular and recreational, and the first, last Wednesday evening, was a pronounced success.

For next Wednesday evening, in addition to the pictures, some fine music is promised.

RESINOL CURED AWFUL ERUPTION ALL OVER FACE

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 2, 1913.—"About eighteen months ago I noticed a lot of little sores spreading all over my face and neck. It itched me something awful, and I felt like I would want to tear my face apart. At night it would pain me and start swelling—then it would itch all the more—so I got very little sleep.

"I tried many treatments, such as ——, etc., but none of them did me any good. I suffered for fourteen months until I sent for samples of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. I applied them to a little part of my face, and it showed good results. So I at once bought a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap from my druggists, and kept on using them for about three months, when I was completely cured. If you would see my face now you would never think anything was ever the matter with it."

(Signed) Louis Bloch, 35 Morrell St.

For eighteen years Resinol has been a favorite doctor's prescription and household remedy for skin eruptions, pimples, blackheads, sunburn, insect bites, dandruff, sores, piles, etc. Stops itching instantly. Every druggist sells Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment; but you can try them without cost—just write for samples to Dept. 44-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.—(Advt.)

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

A Preventive Against Lobbying

Now that the existence of a tariff lobby has been demonstrated and its symptoms rather thoroughly diagnosed, Congress will do well to provide a preventive against the recurrence of such ills. This particular lobby has been checked and its power for evil virtually destroyed, but when the light of publicity is withdrawn, the old forces of special privilege will steal forth again to work as insidiously as ever, unless they are held to a strict account of their movements.

The Senate investigation, which was instituted as a result of President Wilson's plain speech, has accomplished much good. For one thing, it has served to define the presence and the methods of a lobby which was generally supposed to be in operation but concerning which there was comparatively little clear-cut information. It has long been a custom to say that special interests sought unduly and unfairly to influence legislation at Washington but few who made such statements could explain precisely what they meant or could lay a finger on specific acts and particular individuals. As a result, the vagueness of such charges robbed them of their sting and effectiveness. That, however, is no longer true, at least in respect to the lobby that has sought to defeat free sugar. The Senate committee has developed evidence which shows in detail how money was spent, how publicity was bought, how members of Congress were browbeaten or cajoled in an effort to hold up legislation intended for the country's common welfare. And it seems likely that before the committee's work is finished much more evidence of interest and value will be brought to light.

But if this investigation is to yield due and permanent results, it should be followed by the enactment of well considered laws to remedy and to prevent the evils revealed. It may be that Congress will not find opportunity to consider such legislation at the present session, in which tariff and currency reform are of paramount importance. But at the earliest practicable time, the question of lobbying should be dealt with.

It has been suggested that all persons who come to Washington for the purpose of influencing legislation be required to register in a book open to public scrutiny. Such a law has been adopted by many States, among them Georgia. Certain it is that full and constant publicity will go far toward ridding the capitol of the paid agents of special interests, men who if they work successfully must work in the dark. How true this is, the pell-mell exodus of lobbyists following President Wilson's recent statement on the subject strikingly proves.

Revenue From the Parcel Post

The official announcement that the sale of parcel post stamps yielded more than seven million dollars between January the first and March the thirty-first furnishes interesting evidence of the value and the possibilities of the new service to the postoffice department as well as to the public. The period mentioned was largely one of experiment, so that its record of sales will naturally be surpassed in succeeding months. The significant fact is that from the very outset the parcel post has enlisted a big volume of patronage and an attendant increase in the Government's revenue.

Students of postal affairs have long held one of the surest means toward reducing the enormous deficit that has overhung the department would be to increase the department's business, or rather to use to wider advantage the facilities that were at hand. It was pointed out in this connection that railway mail cars frequently ran with only a fraction of the load they could carry; the Government paid for car space which it did not utilize. In like manner, the rural free delivery routes, it was shown, were conducted at a heavy loss simply because their patronage was small; carts and carriers made long trips with a mere handful of mail matter, where if they went well laden, they would be more than self-sustaining.

Hence, it was argued that one of the great virtues of a parcel post from the Government's standpoint would be its increase in the sale of stamps, its inducement to new customers for the department, its larger utilization of postal equipment. That is just what is happening. True, the inauguration of the new system has entailed added expenses but these, we must believe, are more than counterbalanced by the added revenues. Certain it is that the department is now getting more results from the machinery which it formerly maintained for ordinary mail alone. Power that once was permitted to go to waste is now being turned to productive account. That is good business; and, if accompanied by other practical measures, as we now have good reason to hope it will be, the United States postoffice will become a really efficient institution, asset to the Government as well as a service to the people.

The Service of Song Birds.

As a means of protecting orchards and farms against insect pests, the provincial government of British Columbia has imported from the Old Country hundreds of song birds, including larks, linnets, goldfinches and robins, and has made careful provision for their security. It is believed that within comparatively a few years the birds will have exterminated many species of insects that are destroying trees and damaging crops; and besides this practical service, they will greatly enrich the country's natural charm.

There is a widespread awakening in the United States to the value of birds and the importance of protecting them from slaughter. The Department of Agriculture estimates that in the last two years insects have damaged orchards and growing crops to the extent of more than a billion and a half dollars. Much of this loss is attributable to the fact that the pell-mell killing of birds has opened the way for an unchecked increase of insect pests.

Fortunately, we are coming to reckon seriously with these conditions and to profit by the example of Old World countries that have adopted practical measures for bird conservation. Many progressive States, Georgia among them, have enacted protective game laws and, what is especially gratifying, the Federal government seems to have realized the need of such measures. The Department of Agriculture recently set aside a tract of government land as a game preserve where insect-destroying birds will be bred. This is a wise policy and, if faithfully pursued, it will accomplish on a large scale what the provincial government of British Columbia is now attempting in behalf of its own territory and will thereby save agricultural interests from incalculable losses.

The Brazil of Today.

Though the natural wonders and beauties of Brazil have been portrayed by many a traveler, it is doubtful that the material development of that great country is more than dimly realized by most of us in the United States. Yet, our increasing commercial interests in all South America have begotten an eager and widespread demand for definite, up-to-date information concerning the Latin republics. Of particular timeliness and value in this connection is a volume entitled "Brazil in 1912," which has been prepared by Mr. J. C. Oakenfull under the instructions of the Brazilian government and which is now commended to the public's notice by the Pan American Union.

From this admirable record of facts and views, one learns that the Brazil of today has a population of twenty-four millions, that its area is larger than that of the continental United States, that it is enriched with cities modern in their equipment and as delightful in their atmosphere as any to be found in North America or the Old World; that its natural resources are capable of supporting a population many times larger that that of the United States; that its agricultural interests are conducted by scientific methods and that its industrial enterprises are pressing forward with giant strides.

How few foreigners are aware that Brazil has a literature and an art of its own or that its cities are ardent patrons of opera and furnish models which any American municipality would do well to study in the development of public parks and civic centers! Brazil is rich not only in natural treasure but also in those human elements which make for national strength and progress. It is well governed. Its statesmen are men of vision and of generous thought. The Republic already possesses several firstclass battleships and is building up a navy which seems destined to make it the leading maritime power of South America.

With such a nation, the United States will do well to cultivate cordial relationships in commerce and all other interests. It is a noteworthy circumstance that Dr. Lauro Muller, Brazil's minister of foreign affairs, is now visiting the United States and is being warmly welcomed in Washington and other cities. It is to be hoped that the interchange of such visits will be come more frequent and that the people of the United States as a whole may realize more definitely the importance not only of Brazil but all the rich South American lands.

THE PHILIPPINES
—ROADS AND BRIDGES.
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

One of the important uses to which Americans are putting Philippine labor and Philippine money is in the construction of roads and bridges. The Philippine government has been following a definite and comprehensive program of construction in this regard for the past five years. When Americans took over the archipelago there were practically no roads and bridges worthy of the name, except military and strategic highways of Spanish type. Here and there a dirt highway in fair condition could be found in and around the provincial centers. Within a few miles they dwindled into footpaths and mud holes. There was not a modern bridge in the entire archipelago. The Spanish government may have had a plan of road construction but if so it slept sweetly on paper along with most of their dreams. Up to 1896 such roads at were worthy of the name were reduced to still further uselessness due to hard usage and neglect in the insurrection of 1896-97 against Spain and the insurrection against the United States from 1899-1901. The army built some new roads while it controlled affairs, but the civil government failed to keep them up.

The first effort to improve the general road situation was made in 1904 when the Philippine commission appropriated $632,800. The following year $65,000 was spent, but in neither years were the results satisfactory to the authorities. A road and labor law was passed in 1906. This act provided for a few days of labor every year by the male citizens and also made it optional for the provinces to co-operate. The people were extremely hostile to the work and the Philippine officials throughout the provinces did practically nothing to help it along. Not one provincial assembly adopted the law. In the following year the "double cedula act" was passed. The cedula is a head tax of $1 a year on every male inhabitant and this act provided for a double tax for the benefit of roads and bridges in the provinces. An additional source was made available by a series of agreements between the insular government and the provinces whereby the latter agreed to maintain practically all good roads in return for a share in the available insular and bridge money. This co-operation be*tween the insular government and the provincial ad*ministrators proved satisfactory. The people at large now are at least passive in their acceptance of the plan and a goodly percentage of the Filipino officials are actually enthusiastic over it. The waste of money by the American commissioners in the economically useless Benquet road helped cool Filipino ardor.

* * * *

The Spanish roads really had no standards as we know modern highway construction, and their system of bridge building was still more inadequate. They were of adobe and stone arch construction and the bridges were of the same material. These bridges were of comparatively short span, had unduly steep approaches and could not bear heavy loads. Sometimes first-class hardwood was used but usually inferior timbers were put in and only a few of the longer spans were of steel. The majority of the gullies and rivers were without bridges. The American bridges up to 1906 were no better as a rule, being temporary structures and a few seasons of white ants, dampness and typhoons greatly impaired them.

In 1906 a well thought out plan for permanent bridges was put into operation. Steel and concrete were adopted as standard materials and ever since that time the work of substituting the old, unsightly and temporary structures with stately and durable spans has gone on steadily. In that year there were less than 1,500 bridges and culverts in existence, whereas last year there were over 3,000 with a total span of nearly 90,000 feet. The plan is to construct reinforced concrete or masory bridges or culverts on the main roads with the alternative of steel trusses or girders where concrete cannot be used. On branch roads where this is not feasible stone or first grade timber sometimes is used. The government expects to put up about 4,000 additional bridges in the immediate future.

Among other things the road regulations specify that roadmen to make repairs should be stationed less than one mile apart during the rainy season and less than two miles during the dry season. Broken stone and gravel for the use of these roadmen were deposited in bamboo receptacles and this system still is maintained. Provision is made for a yearly provincial appropriation of not less than $282 per mile of designated road. By these means old roads have been brought up to standard and many new roads have been built, the work as a rule following old Spanish routes. The heavily surfaced roads including bridges are now coating on an average of $8,250 per mile. In all over $20,000,000 has been divided to obtain public works in the past nine years, exclusive of the Benguet road and the city of Manila. A comfortable percentage of this sum has gone for roads and bridges.

All of this important road and bridge work is done under the direction of the bureau of public works. This bureau employs from 100 to 125 engineers and from 15,000 to 18,000 laborers. The average daily wage for unskilled laborers is 29 cents. For purposes of administration the bureau is following its program of road and bridge construction by having thirty-one districts, corresponding with the thirty-one provinces, each in charge of a district engineer. The entire work is under the supervision of E. J. Westerhouse, who is chief division engineer. Directly under him are five division engineers who are the immediate superiors of the thirty-one district engineers previously mentioned. The chief engineer of the bureau of public works is having technical direction over the manifold activities of the bureau in Clarence W. Hubbell. The director of the bureau is Warwick Greene.

Most of the roads constructed in the past five years are of the macadamized type surfaced with broken stone, gravel, or rocks as local conditions of traffic, cost and availability may determine. Experiments have been made on some of the important roads with oil and bituminous binders which have been satisfactory.

Two through highways are being built which when completed will rival in extent and character any in the United States. They are the Manila-North road and the Manila-South road. The combined length of the two roads will be 750 miles. The Manila-North road will be a through highway of 350 miles from Manila to the town of Banguy, Ilocos Norte province, which is close to the extreme northern tip of the island of Luzon. The direction of the northern road has been *definitely determin*ed and construction is proceeding by sections as the funds become available. A considerable portion of the layout is now completed as a first-class road and several sections are being added in the present dry season.

The Manila-South road will extend as a traffic line from Manila to the southern extremity of Luzon, a distance of 300 miles. A road which accommodates wheel traffic covers 129 miles of this route from Manila to Guamaca Tayabas province, but a great deal of it will have to be reconstructed. A mountainous country stretches from this point to the Nueva Caceres, with a distance of about fifty miles, but it will take some time to put an Appian way over it. Out of Nueva Caceres southward to Legaspi, Albay province, there is a good road of about sixty-five miles. Co-operation between the provinces of Sorsogon and Albay will complete the southern tip.

And all who have and send it around

We cannot but help some to others impart
Its bright rays; all the hope it enhances
And all that seem dark, gone

The Democracy of Death
BY DR. FRANK CRANE.
(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Nowhere does convention lay its paralyzing hand upon poor mortals so hardly as at the funeral.

A man can live as independently as he pleases, wear a soft shirt, eat with his knife and refuse to go to receptions, and altogether imagine that he is an individual, but when he dies, custom with iron hand and velvet glove invades his house and takes charge.

The great high priestess of funerals is Mrs. Grundy. The sensitive, torn hearts of the family shrink from any sort of conflict, and so they submit to the absurd, expensive, and vulgar things that make of the funeral a horror.

The widow is anxious that all respect be shown. Hence she submits to the extortions of the funeral director and consents to the purchase of a casket that costs six times what it is worth and ten time what she can afford.

Why should people who never ride in carriages in their lifetimes be made to pay for carriages for all the relatives and friends out of the insurance money that belongs to the widow and children?

A decent respect for the dead and for the opinion of our neighbors demands that there be some ceremony, as solemn, as reverential as can be made. But above all things their rites should be purged of display, extravagance, and show. They should be simple, heartful, and genuine.

It is not the money spent that matters so much. In our grief we care nothing for that, and only wish we could squander millions if by so doing we could show the depth of our sorrow. But that is precisely the point *of error; for the expenditure of money does not ex*press grief, it expresses pride; it is a disposition to make a show which is entirely out of place.

The grief of bereavement is essentially private and *shrinking. A funeral should be an affair of the ut*most privacy and simplicity. That, of all places, is no place to parade.

And what a spectacle is the modern graveyard, with its distinctions of rich and poor more sharply marked than among the living. By all means let a man live in a palace if he chooses, but why should he wish to project the class lines of wealth into that region where riches and poverty are no more? At least the realm of death is a democracy. At least in "God's Acre" men ought to be willing to lie still in bare manhood, all together in their investiture of day, equal at last, prince and pauper, there where there is no more

"The boast of a heraldry, the pomp of power."

If we can have no real democracy while we are alive, at least permit us to have the democracy of death.

The Stuff Reporters Are Made Of

(New York World.)

Fatally injured in the Stamford railroad wreck, the first thought and, as it proved, practically the last thought, of Gregory Humes, a reporter for the World, was of duty. In a moment of agony that preceded unconsciousness he gave urgent directions that the World should be notified at once by telephone of the accident; that the "story was a big one," but that he "would not be able to cover it." In the very presence of death in one of its most hideous forms he was faithful.

With sorrowful pride in devotion so heroically displayed and with sympathetic appreciation of the many other noble qualities possessed by Mr. Humes, the World in paying a deserved tribute to him would also in a few words exalt the whole class of workers of which he was a fine example. In no other walk of life do we find more truth, zeal, honor and courage than among newspaper reporters. They record history in the making. On their fidelity, judgment and energy the people of today and the generations that are to come depend for the records that must be imperishable.

Into the collection and writing of these chronicles of busy days, sacrifices of health and life itself often enter. Inured to exhausting labor, reckless of hours or comfort, working under incredible pressure and usually with a singleness of purpose that is generally associated only with the battlefield, the true reporter has two mighty incentives, one being the pursuit of truth and the other the triumph of his newspaper.

Mr. Humes died on the job with no thought that he was a hero, but many a towering shaft the whole earth around commemorates loyalty less notable and bravery less admirable.

Freaks of Memory

(London Chronicle.)

As to freaks of memory, Mark Twain has told us of the pilot who knew every bend, creek, current and shallow in the Mississippi river throughout its whole mighty length, but could not remember what he had for breakfast. Probably most memories are like that. One man I know has a memory that apparently collects only figures. He can always remember your age, even if he forgets your name. He will memorize easily the times of all the trains to a given place, but he generally forgets the platforms from which they start. Reel off to him a column of statistics and he will recite them again to you a month later without a mistake, *having in the meantime for*gotten everything else about you. But then he is a born mathematician. Evidently memory is largely a question of sympathy. We remember the things we are really interested in.

Quips and Quiddities

The late John H. Twachtman, the well known landscape painter, was essentially an "artists' artist," in that his style appealed more to his colleagues of the art world than to the lay public. Any one familiar with the man and his work would say that the following incident which is related of him might easily be true.

A man who had bought one of the artist's paintings wished his opinion on the hanging of the picture and invited him to dine. Mr. Twachtman expressed his approval of the background, of the height at which the canvas was hung, pronounced the light favorable—indeed, he said, there was only one particular in which he would suggest any change.

"And what is that?" inquired his host solicitously.

"Why," said the artist, "I should hang it the other side up. I always have."—Everybody's Magazine.

IS CREMATORY WORK IN CONTEMPT OF COURT?

Attorney C. P. Goree Says Yes, but City Attorney Takes Different View

Possibility of contempt proceedings in superior court growing out of the crematory wrangle and a reopening of the whole controversy developed Monday through assertions of lawyers involved in the case.

Monday Judge Pendleton following the recent supreme court decree signed formal order enjoining the Destructor company from continuing work on the plant and Attorney C. P. Goree said that if the company's employes did not cease they would be cited for contempt.

City Attorney Mayson pointed to the fact that the council had recognized the supreme court ruling in the matter and had authorized the Destructor people to proceed, not under the invalid contract, but under special resolution of council. For this reason, he said, the work would go on and the Destructor company and the city officials would not be in contempt of Judge Pendleton's order.

Percival was arrested on a warrant from Atlanta, and is being held pending the arrival of the Atlanta officer.

G. A. WILLINGHAM SAYS STORY WAS INCORRECT

G. A. Willingham, of Conyers, who complained to the police Wednesday that he had been robbed by a man who was subsequently arrested, states that the story carried in The Journal of that date was erroneous.

In The Journal story it was stated that Mr. Willingham claimed to have been robbed while he was drunk, and that for this reason he also was taken in custody by the police.

Mr. Willingham states that as a matter of fact he was robbed while asleep in his room at the Neal house, and that he was not drunk. He was held a short time by the police, he says, but simply as a witness against the man whose arrest he caused. Wednesday's report said that he claimed to have been robbed of $10. He says that he was robbed of a receipt of $135, which he had on deposit at a saloon, and that the rubber secured the money on the receipt.

CITY MARSHAL IS AFTER STREET TAX DELINQUENTS

Membership Rolls of the City Schools Checked to Locate Parents Who Owe Tax

Orville H. Hall, chairman of the street committee and a member of the tax committee of council, and City Marshal J. M. Fuller have devised two novel schemes for the collection of the 1912 per capita street tax from residents of Atlanta who are in arrears. They are making a sweeping campaign throughout the city.

The membership rolls of all the public schools are being checked over to locate the children of parents who failed to comply with the city law and now owe the original dollar imposed and $1.50 more for not paying it within the time specified by law. The arrest docket at the police station will also be checked daily, and cases will be lodged against all prisoners who cannot show a receipt for their 1912 tax.

This means that when a man is arrested now on any charge whatsoever he will face a second case in court if he has not paid the street levy. The first cases in this connection will be lodged Monday afternoon by Marshal Fuller.

Councilman Hall found, in going over a part of the school membership rolls, that less than one-half of the parents of children attending school have paid the city their one dollar. An examination of 12,000 names disclosed the fact that 7,000 parents had neglected to meet the assessment.

The street tax became delinquent on October 15, 1912. If paid before that date the amount was one dollar. But those who did not meet the levy must now pay an additional $1.50 for their delinquency.

There are nearly 25,000 school children in the city and, basing their figures on the average found in their investigation of the first 12,000 names, Councilman Hall and Marshal Fuller believe that something like 11,000 parents owe the city $2.50 each, or a total of $35,000.

"The police docket, they declare, will yield the names of several hundred delinquents a week.

Names of all persons arrested will be copied by Marshal Fuller and compared with the receipt book in the tax collector's office. If the prisoner has not paid his street tax, another case will be made out against him, and he will be tried on this charge before City Recorder Broyles.

It is expected that a short jail sentence, probably of two or three days, will be imposed by the recorder in the event that the delinquent cannot or will not pay.

"If persons who are in arrears will call at my office and pay the $2.50 tax they will save themselves a good deal of trouble," said Marshal Fuller. "We are going to make cases against all those who have failed to comply with the law, and they will likely be brought into police court, where the amount will be demanded, anyhow."

CONSTRUCTION DEPT. AND MAYOR ARE IN DISPUTE

Mayor Woodward Appears in Private Capacity for A., B. & A.

Mayor Woodward and the city construction department are in dispute over the payment of a curbing and sidewalk assessment against some Bellwood avenue property owned by the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad and represented by the mayor in his private capacity as agent.

Officials of the construction department took the mayor in the department automobile Monday morning and went over the ground, but they seemed not to have gotten together.

It appears, from what the construction department officials say, that when the work was passed up by council, Mr. Woodward notified the department that he would have the work done himself, instead of by the city contractor. But the time allowed under this privilege expired, and the city contractor proceeded to do the work.

Now the contractor's bill, according to the city law, is a lien against the property.

RESIDENCE FIRED BY SPARKS FROM CHIMNEY

The roof of the residence of Robert H. Jones, 14 East Fourteenth street, caught fire from sparks, probably from the kitchen chimney, Monday afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock.

Members of the family called the fire department, which was able to extinguish the blaze before serious damage was done.

WOMAN TRIES TO KNIFE OFFICER ARRESTING HER

Flora May Bateman, crazed with drink, drew a knife from her clothes and attempted to plunge it into the chest of Call Policeman Gorman when he tried to put her under arrest, Sunday afternoon, at her home at 30 Peters street.

The quick action of Policeman Gorman in throwing up his arm and warding off the blow saved his life. He escaped with two sprained fingers, which were injured when the woman's descending arm struck his hand.

The officer clung to her wrist and after a tussle succeeded in wrenching the knife from her grip and subduing her.

The woman was under bond pending an appeal from a vagrancy charge. She was arrested by Policeman Gorman just before the last term of the city court, and it is believed that she attempted to slay the officer out of vengeance.

You Have Heard Much Of Late About Makers' Surplus Stocks Of Dresses And The Fine Economy That Their Purchase Has Meant, But It Has Remained For This

Sale of Summer Dresses

To Bring To The Women Of Atlanta The REAL Values Of The Season

$5.00 and $5.75

Black China Silk Waists

$2.45

The Waist Department contributes to the day's events!

Contributes an interesting item.

Black China silk waists and shirts from our own good stocks, and priced regularly there at $5.00 and $5.75, are marked $2.45.

And there is a variety of splendid styles, serviceable and cool. Choose from waists with high and Dutch necks, eyelet embroidered, with little clusters of tucks and buttons on fronts, with tucks over shoulders. Open front or back. Shirts—with folds down front, with pocket, with folded or flat collar.

Those who are going to travel this summer will find this an opportunity!

The women of Atlanta shall have a day of it tomorrow! A day to choose the freshest and charmingest of summer dresses at prices that in no wise compare with values as you know them.

It is accomplishing such results as this that adds zest to the game of merchandising, that brings the fine joy of a good job well done. We have heard much, very much, of late about dress sales. Their whys and wherefores, but somehow or other our advertising pen, that must be truthful, has had to wait until now for this opportunity. It has arrived with a vengeance!

But how to make the most of it?

Simply by reciting the plain and interesting facts to the women of Atlanta who have yet, when they visit this store, to be deceived by any statement that Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., makes.

Our dress buyer has just come in from New York, and with him upwards of three hundred summer dresses of surpassing beauty. They are anything but the usual kinds, a happy relief from cheap laces, gaudy embroidery, from dresses made down to a price. These are from a maker whose business-pride is a great asset. It holds him above any kind of cheapening, of skimping in quality; it keeps him ever lastingly working out new and becoming styles. Whether it is early April when he is making dresses and fair profit, or whether it is mid-June when he is making dresses and readiness for another season the same thoroughness characterizes his work.

We tell you this now merely because you have not seen the dresses; after your visit tomorrow when your eyes will have taken in all that the dresses are you will more fully understand.

There are white voile dresses---all white and with touches of color---here and there on collars, cuffs, in girdles; there are striped voile dresses; there are Dresden crepe dresses and flowered crepe dresses---any number of different kinds---so many that, we warrant, the question most women will have to decide is which one or several she likes best.

And back of them all is that fine fact that every one may be bought at a splendid saving. But you will not have to be told of the saving, it is evident. You will know no such attractive affairs could not be sold regularly at such prices; you will know they have not been sold at such prices.

$5.00 For $7.50 to $9.75 Dresses

There are fifty of these. You may choose from white voiles or from white crepes, figured and flowered in delicate pinks, blues, lavenders and the like. They are trimmed with laces and embroideries, yokes are often entirely of embroidery—and they (some of them) have belts of black velvet or folded satin. The finest five dollars' worth we have known, and we believe you will agree—they are so cool and summery; they fit so splendidly.

$6.98 For $10 to $12.50 Dresses

One hundred and twenty-five of these. There are all-white voiles, and their laces and embroideries will be a revelation for fineness. There are dresses with white crepe skirts and smart coats of Dresden crepes, in which the daintiest flowers show — rose, Copenhagen, over plain tucked vests and with belt and facings of satin. With these we have put a number of $10.00 and $11.75 black China silk dresses from our own stock. Half length sleeves; flat, round collar.

$8.75 For $12.50 to $15 Dresses

There are one hundred and twenty-five of these and would there were more! Voiles are the materials, and such voiles! Seemingly as crisp and fine as could be woven. Some are white, some are striped in shades favored right now. Those all-white are made elegant with embroidery medallions surrounded by laces in yokes, and those striped are newly styled dresses, simple and dainty, that mean worlds of satisfaction for morning trips to town; for afternoon wear.

CHARMING YOUNG GIRL

MISS KATHLEEN HOLDER.

Miss Holder—the attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Holder, is the guest of the Misses Perdue.

What Anne Ritten-house Says

There is something about the summer that predisposes one to lounging robes and bedroom slippers. Fashionable women indulge in a quantity of both during every month in the year, although it is a mystery how many of them get a chance to wear them, as the American woman with millions has no more leisure than the American woman with dimes. She may not be working for her living or cooking three meals a day for a husband and six children, but if either of these women thinks that the rich woman in modern life has many idle moments she would be thoroughly cured of that impression if she lived for a month in a millionaire's house.

The management of their several establishments, their charities, their board meetings, the education of their children, their social life, the trying on of their many gowns, and the immense secretarial work which they either do or oversee, so engross their time that the working girl on eight hours a day would make up her mind that she had a neasy time of it.

Every woman works today. The grasshoppers and the drones are so few that they are not worth counting. It is the fashion to work, and if a woman doesn't have it thrust upon her she goes out and looks for it. She is an early riser and a midnight retirer, and in those hours it is barely possible that she has much time to enjoy the marvelous dressing gowns and caps which she purchases. Still the world is full of such costumery and a good deal of it is so wonderfully made that it will serve as an informal dinner gown and always for one's breakfast table.

Every Day Dressing Gowns.

Many women do not care to indulge in the mysteries of lace and chiffon and ribbon and roses that are called room robes by the rich, but every woman needs one or more attractive lounging robes in which one can read or write in the long hot summer afternoons or put on for breakfast in the early mornings.

There has been a revived fashion for loose, long wrappers of white dotted swiss. The women of other days, and always the women of the south, knew these wrappers well. They went to the tub and they were worn always in the house during the day without corsets over attractive lingerie and half belted in with blue or pink or lavender ribbon. The necks were opened, the rolling collar edged with lace and the flaring three-quarter sleeves were caught up with a little bow of satin ribbon.

Now these are the lounging robes that have returned to fashion this summer, and many of them are lined with thin china silk of blue or pink in order that one need not feel too transparently clothed. The economy in these robes is the way they wash and iron, and one does like a garment that can go to the tub along with the shirt waist every week and not to the cleaners once in two months.

Among the real novelties is a two-piece lounging robe of crepe de chine which was first made in brick red with Turkish embroidery, and the Turkish cap and slippers to match. It went by the name of the smoking gown and was a fashionable fantasy built on the theme that the fashionable smoke in the morning. It has been copied in all kinds of material for women who do not smoke in the morning or any other time.

The skirt is hung from the shoulders by ribbon suspenders and is slashed slightly at the hem on each side. There is a straight coat that hanks half way to the knees and is also slashed at each side and edged with bright hued embroidery. At the waist line, but not outlining it there, is a huge draped sash of china silk with fringed ends.

Miss Brooks Entertains

An enjoyable event of Friday evening was the linen shower given by Miss Lillian Brooks at her home on Capitol avenue in honor of Miss Pearl Mobley, a bride-elect.

The lower floor was artistically decorated with ferns and bowls of white sweet peas, a color scheme of green and white being carried out.

Mrs. E. M. Redwine assisted in receiving.

Punch was served throughout the evening by Miss Irma Brooks and little Misses Grace Hamilton and Irma Lichenstein delightfully entertained the guests with piano selections. A unique feature of the shower was an acrostic on the word Redwine expressing a wish to bride, after which she was given a basket decorated in green and white and asked to gather in the many pieces of linen which were hung upon a gilt line.

The young lady friends of the bride were invited from 5 to 7 o'clock, cake and cream in green and white being served. The groom, Mr. Isaac F. Redwine, and the young men called at 6 o'clock, sandwiches and ice tea being which "red wine" was passed and toasts were drunk to the bride.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS AT THE CAPITAL CITY COUNTRY CLUB

The official opening of the Capital City Country club on Thursday will be in the form of a reception at 5 o'clock, followed by dancing at 8 o'clock. It will be anenjoyable social event and will give opportunity for inspection of the newly acquired club.

Many improvements are being made and others are planned, and since the Capital City club took over the Brookhaven club on June 1, a marked improvement is already noticeable. The club house and grounds have been beautified and made most attractive by the addition of plants and flowers. The terraces from the clubhouse to the lake have been improved, and a cement walk will be laid to the water's edge.

The three courts are in good condition and the clay pigeon trap, located at the east end of the lake, offers exceptionally fine sport. Improvements have been made also on the golf course.

One especially attractive feature at the club is the lake, which is always clear. It is fed by pure springs and is protected by a storm wall. It is fine for swimming and has bee nstocked with fish.

Another convenience is the private telephone line which has been installed between the end of teh car line and the clubhouse, enabling the members to establish quick connection with the club and to summon the automobile bus when it does not meet the car.

The town house has also been improved, the pretty boxes filled with flowers being a most attractive addition to the verandas. The roof garden has been improved and enlarged and many plants and flowers added. The ladies' cafe closes now at 6 and the service has been moved to the roof garden.

A Simple Correction
(Louisville Times.)

The following sentence was written by a teacher on the blackboard to one of the local schools the other day: "The toast was drank in silence."

The teacher asked the pupils if anyone could tell her what the mistake in this sentence was. The class remained silent for a few minutes. Then a little boy held up his hand, and at a nod from the teacher went to the blackboard and wrote the following correction:

"The toast was ate in silence."

THE HOUSE

"He said I could take you down and show you the house today," said Mrs. Cort. "He left the keys with me. See?" She dangled the tinkling bunch before Nainie's eyes.

"There's such a lot of them," murmured Nainie.

Mrs. Cort laughed. "Of course, it's a very large house—a grand house," she said. "But that you'll soon see for yourself. He thought you would be less embarrassed if he were not along. And, anyway, business called him out of town today. He has acted all the way through in the fairest, most considerate manner, I think, I declare, if it weren't for Dick, I'd be in love with him myself. You'll be ready just after luncheon?"

"I'M SO IGNORANT, SO UNTEACHABLE," SHE WHISPERED TO THE DARK EYES."

"Yes-es," promised Nainie.

"Yes-es!" Mrs. Cort mimicked. "Nainie Gordon, I declare, I lose patience with you. From your tone one would think you were being offered poison instead of a handsome house and six thousand or so a year, not to mention a husband like Guy Kelcey."

"I feel it's a great honor——" Nainie began faintly.

"Honor! Of course it's an honor, for he might have his pick of the eligible women in this town, and he chooses you. But ought to mean something more than that to you, child.

"I don't know," Nainie said miserably. "I guess I'll go to my room a little while. My hair needs fixing and it's most luncheon time, and——"

Mrs. Cort appeared to ignore the faltering excuses. She only said: "And after luncheon we're going down to look at the house. Remember."

As Nainie climbed the stairs to the guest chamber she thought that she would indeed be likely to remember little else. She netered and shut the door, looked around irresolutely, and dropped upon the bed. Opposite her was a cheval glass, tilted in a way that gave her a full view of herself. She stared at it wonderingly as at another girl. It was a very small, pale, big-eyed young girl in a home-made dress that did not fit particularly well.

"I don't see why he wants to marry me," she said, quite dispassionately. And mentally she saw the brisk, brusque business man who had wooed her devotedly ever since she came to Mrs. Cort's visiting. "I don't shee why he wants to marry me and put me in that house."

Yet he did. The fact was unmistakable. He had from the first insisted that his attentions be not misunderstood. He had plied Nainie with violets and bonbons of a quality that awed her simplicity. It is true, such exquisite partiality flattered her. And she liked Mr. Kelcey in a way.

As for Mrs. Cort, she was plainly delighted. Secretly she had not much fancied hadling forth this little country acquaintance of hers for the inspection of her fashionable friends, although she had felt bound out of kindness of heart to ask Nainie to visit her. But the instant Mr. Kelcey showed that he was taking an interest in Nainie the situation looked different. Mr. Kelcey and Nainie! Of course, Nainie in the big house which had been left on Mr. Kelcey's hands when his wife died, and for which he clearly needed a mistress. Nainie riding in her own car, giving parties and remembering all Mrs. Cort's kindness by being very kind in return. Why, that indeed was just as it should be.

Nainie knew that she was being urged openly and otherwise from morning until night to marry Mr. Kelcey. Mrs. Cort talked much about him. She gave him every opportunity to make his wooing atttractive. And now, as a last stroke of genius, she had agreed to conduct Nainie on a tour of inspection through the house. Nainie had felt this last episode coming several days.

More than once she had woke up in the dead of night feeling that tomorrow she must go home. If she waited to see that house she suspected she would make absolute surrender and marry Mr. Kelcey. The temptation would prove too strong for her.

For it would be a temptation. She knew that before ever seeing the house. Sitting there facing her own shadowy little reality, she tried to come to a complete understanding with herself. There were reasons why she should marry the house and Mr. Kelcey—ah, too many! And there was also one reason why she should not.

"There are the folks at home," she thought. "It would be fine for them. I could do for my sisters and I could buy comforts for mother and lend father a bit of help out now and then. And I wouldn't have to teach any more. There'd be room for them all in that fine, big house. I know just how proud they'd be to see me its mistress. I'm the oldest, and they all look to me somehow. I must consider them." A sob got tangled in her throat and her eyes blurred. "Yes, the house is going to prove the most terrible kind of temptation. I've been able to withstand the violets and bonbons, the box parties and the auto rides, but the house—" Her lips came at last to one for which Mrs. Cort had some trouble in finding the key. As they entered she gave an exclamation. "Why, this must have been her room!"

Just opposite them, where the light trickled through the windows upon it, was the life-size portrait of a woman—a stately, wonderful woman in blue satin, with jewels on her lovely bosom. The black eyes seemed to be looking toward them inquiringly, as in royal surprise and resentment at their intrusion.

"How beautiful!" breathed Mrs. Cort. "But—astonishingly lifelike. I feel like an invader." She tried uneasily to laugh. "I don't think I care to linger here. She—she doesn't seem to like it. Come, dear."

"Wait. I want to look at her," Nainie said, quietly and unexpectedly. "She won't mind my looking at her. I know."

"I'm not sure about that." Mrs. Cort shivered. "It's so cold in here. I'll just run out into the hall where that sunny spot is; so look all you want to, child."

She was gone and Nainie was alone with the portrait. She went close up to it and looked directly into the dark, searching eyes. And she looked revelation came. She saw her great unlikeness to the woman whose place she was expected to fill—her absolute unfitness for the life that awaited her.

"I'm so ignorant, so unteachable," she whispered to the dark eyes. "Oh, you show me that and I'm glad I saw you. No, dear lady, I won't try to fill your place; I couldn't. I should only make a wretched failure and break my poor heart in doing it. My place is back home with Johnny. Isn't that what you are trying to tell me?" she added. "I'm coming." She went out, closing the door gently behind her.

Rather silently they gained the street and the sunshine. "It's fine—grand," said Mrs. Cort quite gay again. "Much more splendid than I expected. And to think it's all yours!"

"No," Nainie said, and her voice was quivered. "Yet there's Johnny," she whispered.

Her small hand sought in the secrecy of her bosom and pulled out a thin gold locket. The worn spring yielded to a touch and the flimsy lids parted. Within was the fine, clear, dark face of a young man. She gazed at it in anguish till her tears overflowed and, falling upon the glass that protected the picture, blurred it.

"Johnny," she whispered. "I do love you, but you're like father—bound to be a poor man always. And mother says I've no business to be as foolish as she was. So, oh, Johnny, don't you see? The house is going to be an awful temptation."

She wiped the glass and put the little locket back in her bosom. Presently when the maid announced luncheon and she went down she did not show over much that she had just been shedding some of the bitterest tears she had ever known.

They started out for the house directly luncheon was over. They went on foot. Their walk took them into the most fashionable portion of the town and into one of the most elegant houses they entered by means of the keys Mrs. Cort carried.

The faint mustiness of a long closed interior met them. They passed in silence through the stately hall into a still more stately parlor, into a library, lined with volumes, a dining room all mahogany, a den, with hampered silver desk furnishings, a music room where dust was gathering on the lid of a superb baby grand.

With a faint laugh Mrs. Cort dropped upon the polished bench before the piano and lifted the shining lid. Her fingers waking the ivories brought echoes from every corner of the great empty house. With a slight shiver she arose.

"It's a pity you don't play or sing," she said. "I understand Mrs. Kelcey did both to perfection." She closed the piano. "Well, let's go upstairs. We don't care to see the kitchen, eh? That would be no novelty for either of us."

They ascended the stair. They went through chamber after chamber and for it would be a complete understanding with herself. There were reasons why she should marry the house and Mr. Kelcey—ah, too many! And there was also one reason why she should not.

"There are the folks at home," she thought. "It would be fine for them. I could do for my sisters and I could buy comforts for mother and lend father a bit of help out now and then. And I wouldn't have to teach any more. There'd be room for them all in that fine, big house. I know just how proud they'd be to see me its mistress. I'm the oldest, and they all look to me somehow. "No," Nainie said, and her voice was as calmly resolute as her face. "It isn't mine. I can never be mine, it's hers that wonderful woman's. I'm no equal of her's Evelyn, no matter what Mr. Kelcey's fancies or you wish. And so I'm going back to marry Johnny. I'm going back tomorrow!" cried Nainie, joyfully.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

I've often heard old Granny say
He longest lives who runs away.

Reddy Fox didn't realize that he was speaking aloud. He was trying to make himself think that he wasn't a coward and that in running away from Old Man Coyote he had done only what every one of the little meadow and forest people would have done in his place. So without knowing it he had spoken aloud.

But he who runs must leave behind
His self respect and peace of mind.

The voice came from right over Reddy's head, but he didn't have to look up to know who was there. It was Sammy Jay, of course. Sammy is always on hand when he isn't wanted and Reddy knew by the look in his eyes that Sammy had seen the meeting with Old Man Coyote.

"What are you waiting around here for?" asked Reddy, with a snarl.

"To tell old Granny Fox how brave you are," retorted Sammy Jay, his eyes sparkling with mischief, "and how fast you can run."

"You better mind your own affairs and leave me alone. I shall tell Granny all about it myself, anyway," snapped Reddy.

Now, when Reddy said that he didn't tell the truth, for he had no intention of telling old Granny Fox of how he had run from Old Man Coyote, but hardly were the words out of his mouth when old Granny Fox herself stepped out from behind a bush. She had been up in the Old Pasture for a week or two and had just come back, so she knew nothing of the fright which Old Man Coyote had given the Green Meadows and the Green Forest.

"I'm already to listen right now, Reddy," she said.

Reddy hung his head. He coughed and cleared his throat, and tried to think of some way out of it. But it was of no use. There sat Sammy Jay ready to tell if he didn't, and so, mumbling so low that twice Granny told him to speak louder, Reddy told how he had run and how Old Man Coyote had laughed at him so that all the little people in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows had heard.

"Of course he laughed!" snapped old Granny Fox. "You're a coward, Reddy Fox, just plain coward. It's all well enough to run away when you know you have to, but to run before there is anything to be afraid of shows you are the biggest kind of a coward. Bah! Get out of my sight!"

Reddy slunk away muttering to himself and glaring angrily at Sammy Jay, who was chuckling with delight to see Reddy looking so uncomfortable. Old Granny Fox made sure that Reddy was out of hearing, and then she sat down to think, and there was a worried pucker in her forehead.

"Old Man Coyote is a wolf," said she, talking to herself, "and a wolf on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest will mean hard hunting for Reddy and me when food is scarce. It is of no use for me to fight him, for he is bigger and stronger than I am. I'll just have to make all the trouble for him that I can, and then perhaps he'll go away. I wonder if he has ever met Prickly Porky the Porcupine. I believe I'll go over and make Prickly Porky a call right now!"

And as she trotted through the Green Forest she began to call to Prickly Porky her thoughts were very busy, very busy indeed. She was planning more trouble for Old Man Coyote.

DOBBERS CLIMB FAST; CRACKERS ARE ERRATIC

Birmingham Is Fast Moving From Cellar—Mobile Played Good Ball Past Week and Held Lead—Hurlers and Batters Are Both Going at a Fast Clip

Chattanooga came near ruining a bunch of good work when a doubleheader was lost to Memphis on Sunday, this double loss, with victories for Atlanta and Montgomery, placing the Lookouts in a tie for fourth place with Atlanta, while Montgomery stepped up to second place, with room to spare. Mobile continues to lead, though not by so large a margin as a month ago.

The most remarkable work among Southern league clubs during the past week was the continued sport of the Lookouts and the return to life of the Mobile outfit. The work of Montgomery, too, shares in the stellar performances of the week. Johnny Dobbs having whipped his club up a bit, and it is now turning out a jam-up game.

The Atlanta club has played erratic ball most of the past week. Often the club looks like a world beater, and then again it will look very ordinary. In the three games with Nashville the first of the past week the Smith club looked unbeatable, as was the case in Saturday's game with Birmingham, but on Thursday and Friday Birmingham, a second division bunch, completely showed up the Atlanta bunch. This change from good to bad is just what has caused the Crackers from being nearer the top of the ladder, and until they get together and play more consistent ball there isn't much chance for any big improvement.

The Birmingham club has awakened from a prolonged sleep, and right now are going good. The team has jumped past both Nashville and New Orleans, and is just about tied with Memphis for fifth place. New Orleans continues to hold safely to the bottom, being over a hundred points in the rear of Nashville.

The Nashville club has dropped fast and sure, and is now in seventh place. The team was going like a house afire two weeks ago, but of late has dropped fast. Bill Schwartz needs a few more hard hitters if he intends to keep in the race.

Just at present Mobile is topping Montgomery by four and a half games, with Atlanta six and a half games behind the leaders. Montgomery is just two games ahead of Atlanta, with Chattanooga tied with the Crackers. This makes the race closely bunched, and changes are liable to be made with the games of any one day.

With the continued hard hitting of some of the batters, several hurlers, noticeably Pole Coveleskie, of Chattanooga, have struck their stride, and right now are going fine. With both batters and hurlers going good, the race promises to liven up and be even closer and better than in the past.

Britton vs. Duffy

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 23.—Jack Britton, of Chicago, and Jimmy Duffy, of Locsport, N. Y., contenders for Hall-weight championship honors, will meet here tonight in a return ten-round bout. In their first bout several weeks ago Britton won in 10 f 11 round, effect being disqualified for fouling.

OTHERS ARE NOT CUT TO HELP

FRANK CHANCE.

"I do not take much stock in all this talk about other managers going to help us out," said Frank Chance, as he was watching his men work out yesterday. "There never was a baseball manager who was with a club in last place that did not have to go out and build up a club. I know what I am talking about. Connie Mack will give us an outfielder if we give him something good in return. He will take two tens for a five any old time.

"But that is not worrying me in the least. It is just a case of sitting still and keeping our eyes peeled to strength-en the team.

"I believe that we would have been going along winning half of our games, if not more, had Zeider and Midkiff remained in the game. The infield was going great and things were working smoothly when all of a sudden away went the work and, of course, we skidded. I never did hand out any alibis, so make it strong that this is not one. Zeider has been sent home, as he is still suffering with that big league bunion. He was lucky that blood poison did not set in. He will not be able to play for a couple of weeks. As for Midkiff, I think he will be able to get back in the game during the series in Washington.

"None of the pitchers are complaining of bad arms, but the four we used in the first game with the Browns did not have a thing, but they will come around all right. Warhop had more in that game on Tuesday than he had all season, which makes me think that he will go along good from now on. Any new men that we secure we will try out. This is the time to do it. We will keep plugging along fixing up here and there, and I hope to give the loyal fans something to shout about later. But at the present time we are in a bad way and doing the best we can. Better times are coming. Our scouts are trying to corral players who look good enough for a trial. It is hard to get ball players at this time of the season, and it is difficult to get players who can stick around in the big show."—Ex-change.

MUSSER TO WORK GAME

The Pels and Crackers will meet in the second game of this series today, provided the sky juice does not intervene. The weather in New Orleans is warm and cloudy.

Billy Smith will probably send Musser against the tail-enders, endeavoring to steady him down, with Chapman as his battery mate.

The road trip before the Crackers is such a tough one that they must stretch themselves considerably in the first games to make a good record for the whole trip.

To Wind Up Pelky Trial

CALGARY, Alberta, June 23.—The case of Arthur Pelkey, the pugilist who is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Luther McCarty in the prize ring bout here May 24, probably will be in the hands of the jury before night.

Testimony intended to refute that presented by the crown in support of the contention of the prosecution that McCarty's death came as the result of a blow to the jaw was introduced by the defense. Several prominent medical men who testified for the defense shortly before the adjournment Saturday were expected to take the stand today and give the concluding testimony in the defendant's case.

Whether or not the crown had any new witnesses to present was not known, but it was understood that further testimony would be elicited from surgeons who already had testified for the prosecution.

The Thistle Winner

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., June 23.—The Thistle, the scratch boat owned by J. H. Wallace, won the Lipton Viking trophy for boats manned by amateurs, and the Katrina S. captured the Day cup, in the New York Athletic club's 100-mile power boat race, which started off Wor-thieburg Island Saturday and ended here Sunday. The Thistle's time was 11:21:45, 62 seconds ahead of the Frances H., which came in second.

COBB VS. JACKSON

Cobb's average for today remains the same as the average after Saturday's game, since he made only one trip to the plate today and drew a pass then. He retired in the third inning on account of feeling badly.

Jackson also retired in the seventh inning, due to the fact that he, too, felt badly by disputing his word. Jackson was at bat three times with no results.

SLUGGING KEEPS OMAHA CLUB AT TOP IN RACE IN WESTERN

Thomason, Johnson, Kane, Shestak, Congalton.

This is the wrecking crew that is keeping Omaha up near the front of the procession in the Western league pennant race.

If Omaha wins the gonfalon in Tip O'Neil's circuit, it will be due to the heavy hitting brigade Manager Arbogast has gathered for Bill Rourke.

The pitching staff isn't exactly high class, although the acquisition of Luke Glavenich, farmed by Cleveland, should prove beneficial. Glavenich is one of those pitchers who "has everything," but has to learn how to control it. At Omaha he ought to win a lot of games with the slugging brigade behind him.

The pitching hasn't been any too classy this spring and the defense is not of the stonewall variety, but the slugging, oh, mama!

Chief of the heavy hitters is Arthur Thomason, two years ago with the Cleveland American league team. Thomason bore the earmarks of a hitter when a Nap, but he had little experience and needed seasoning. Now he is kiln dried in the big minor league fire and is about ready to try once more for a job in a major league, and, if his present appearance counts, he will stick.

Omaha's team is composed chiefly of veterans. There's "Bunk" Congalton, who for twelve or thirteen years has been hitting the ball in minor leagues above .300; Jim Kane, first baseman, who was with Pittsburg for a time; Shipke, the old Washington infielder, and Justice.

GIANTS MOVING FAST; DODGERS COME TO LIFE

Two Philadelphia Clubs Continue to Hold Lead, Though Phillies Are Not So High

NEW YORK, June 23.—With New York and Philadelphia engaged in a hot fight for first place and Brooklyn again playing superb ball, not far behind, the National league race has entered one of the most interesting phases of the season. Chicago still has a look-in, but it is Brooklyn that the National league leaders are watching most attentively at the moment, however.

In the junior organization it also is a third place club—the Boston—that *just now is making the strongest show-*ing. The Red Sox, champions of the world, apparently have struck their gait at last, and the American league is taking notice. The team dropped only one game in seven during the week just ended and wound up by trimming Philadelphia twice in succession. The Clevelands are some distance ahead yet and the Mack contingent still further away.

In the National league struggle, early in the week the Philadelphias were in a fair way to lose their lead. They had lost a game to St. Louis and three to Chicago when they suddenly braced and won all their other games.

Thursday night the giants were close behind, but the net result for the week was to leave both clubs practically where they were when the recent western trip opened, three and a half games apart.

On the form shown during the week the Chicago team has little chance of improving its position. The inability of Pittsburg to win consistently is still a puzzle on the league. O'Toole pitched probably the best game of his big league career last Tuesday, yet his team could not hit Perdue and lost, 1 to 0.

Boston, after going promisingly for a while, has dropped off a bit. St. Louis and Cincinnati can do not two of the six games played last week.

The brace taken by the New Yorks was a most interesting development in the American league race, although the Highlanders ended the week with a double defeat by Washington, they have shown that there is hitting and winning power in the club.

The chief burden of the pitching for the Senators is falling as usual upon Walter Johnson, and he is bearing up manfully. He has lost four games, but even with his fifteen victories to date, can hardly hope to equal Joe Wood's last year's record of thirty-three victories and five defeats.

Chicago had the edge on its opponents during the week, winning three out of five.

The Detroits, with Cobb as their clean-up artist, keep hitting hard, but poor pitching frequently negatives their work with the bat. They won but two and lost four games during the six-day period. St. Louis managed to bat out a victory over the Highlanders, their lone item on the side for the week. New York got an even break in a hard schedule of eight games. Batting sprees were features of play on the part of several clubs in each organization.

Couldn't Make Swim

NEW YORK, June 23.—In his third attempt to swim from sandy Hook to the Battery, Charles Durborow, a Philadelphia bank teller, failed after swimming seven hours and covering 18 miles. The distance is about 22 miles. He said he would not try again. Durborow met adverse conditions of every description.

Brother's Death Kept From Crew Members

SEATTLE, Wash., June 23.—Two members of the eight-oarde cre wof the University of Washington, which rowed third in the Poughkeepsie regatta Saturday, were kept in ignorance for three weeks of the drowning of their brother, it was learned today. The oarsmen were Edd and Elmer Leader, twins, who pulled No. 2 and No. 3 oars.

Their brother Arthur was drowned while swimming at Rosa, Wash., June 3, but were not told, for fear the news would unnerve them for the race.

New Machines For Next Race

Motordrome Fans Will Have Chance to See Meet Wednesday Night

The riders are back at the old job of marking time out at the Atlanta motordrome, and there is nothing in sight for them between now and Wednesday night, except to warm up their machines and to kill time.

Wednesday night will be Butchers and Grocers' night at the motordrome, in honor of the Wednesday half holiday in these two branches of the retail trade.

The Jim Woodward Sweepstakes will be the main event, with the third motordome purse as the other feature. As usual, nine races will be run.

The new machines that are coming down from Chicago should be here sudely by Wednesday night, and it is likely that sevehal of the riders will have new mounst by then, which will make things materially more exciting.

Harry Glenn, the Atlanta rider, has put in a lot of time in the last week tuning uphis machine for the coming races, and he should get in the finals at least in one or two events. This man has picked up the board track racing game almost over night and will in time become one of America's greatest motordrome racers.

PRICE NOW AT THE TOP

Gil Price, the cracker's southpaw, again leads the southern league in the pitchers' battle between himself and Coveleskie for hurling honors.

Coveleskie's losing yesterday brought his average down below that of Price. These two twirlers have see-sawed for first place for some time. Price going ahead last week with his victory over Nashville. Covaleskie, however came back the next day with a win which put him back in first place.

Price will probaby work one of the New Orleans games, and in the event of a win he will have a good safe margin over the Chattanooga wonder.

Their figures to date are as follows:

PLAYER.	Games.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Price	16	8	2	.800
Covaleskie	21	14	4	.778

Cracker Captain Secured Four Hits—Dent Twirled Well in Pinches

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 23.—Dent held steady in the pinches Sunday and kept the Pels successfully in check, the Crackers winning 4-2. Only one game of the scheduled double-header was played, the first being rained out. Brenton, who started the game for New Orleans, was hurt his hip in the first inning and retired from the game. Brenner, who succeeded him, was hit most successfully in the sixth inning for five hits and three runs.

Captain Alperman was most assured-ly there with the stick, getting two singles and two doubles at timely intervals. His double in the third scored Dent, who had previously walked and his single in the sixth started the big ball rolling.

The big sixth went as follows: Alperman singled to Snedecor, too hot to handle. Bailey fanned. Smith hit to the fence for two sacks and took third on Clancy's error. Bisland singled and Wally scored. Bisland was sent around by Dunn's single and Dent's double.

Dent was unhittable in critical stages of the game, forcing twelve men to remain on the bags, three of these in the seventh inning. Red Williams was not in the Pel line-up by Frank to take Jakey Atz's place in the seventh inning.

The postponed section of the double-header will be played off on July 20.

Good Polo Game

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., June 23.—The mounted service school polo team yesterday won the honor of representing Fort Riley at the national army tournament at Washington, by defeating the Sixtieth field artillery. The score was 6 3-4 to 4 3-4. The artillery team, the runners-up in the post tournament, will represent Fort Riley at the Chicago polo tournament this week.

Minnesota Won't Play The Michigan Eleven

MINNEAPOLIS, June 23.—The University of Minnesota will not meet Michigan on the football field next fall. This was announced today by the athletic authorities at the university, that the date held open for *the possible sched-*uling of Michigan, October 25, had been given to the University of North Dakota. This precludes any possibility of a resumption of football relations with Michigan until at least another year.

The eastern intercollegiate cross-country run will be decided over the Van Cortlandt park course, New York city, on November 2.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 23.—Manager Schwartz will send Beck in to pitch for Nashville in an effort to wrest the second game of the present series from Montgomery this afternoon. He will be opposed by Case. Gibson will catch for the visitors, and Donehue for the home club.

The weather is clear and hot.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 23.—Chattanooga and Memphis will play the third game of the present series this afternoon at Red Elm park.

Batteries: Memphis, Newton and Seabough; Chattanooga, Summers and Street.

The weather is clear and hot.

MOBILE, Ala., June 23.—Bradley Hogz, who made such a good showing against the New Orleans club, will work against Birmingham in the second game of the series here this afternoon, with Schmidt behind the bat. Manager Molesworth, of Birmingham, has announced that Foxen would be on the mound for his aggregation, with Mayer behind the bat.

Local Stars Have Entered Tennis Meet

Ed Carter, Grant, Smith, Thornton and Mansfield to Play at New Orleans for the Southern Honors

Atlanta will be well represented in the coming tournament for the championship of the south at New Orleans. C. Y. Smith, who won the Georgia state championship at the Piedmont Driving club last week and who holds the southern title in singles, will defend his title in this tournament. Dr. Nat Thornton, Charles Sisson, E. S. Mansfield, B. M. Grant and E. V. Carter, Jr., will also play in this tournament.

The players are all on hand, and the drawings will be held today, the actual play starting tomorrow. The prizes contested for will be in men's singles, men's doubles, and ladies' singles.

The trophy presented to the winner of the men's singles becomes the property of any one winning it three times. It has been won twice by Dr. Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, and twice by Conrad R. Doyle, of Washington, and once by T. R. *Pell, of New York; R. C. Hunt, of Cal-*ifornia, and C. Y. Smith, of Atlanta.

The team now holding the challenge cup for men's doubles is composed of Dr. Nat Thornton and C. Y. Smith, these players are, however, not playing together this year, Smith playing with Mansfield and Grant with Thornton. The team Grant and Thornton have already won this cup twice, and should they get away again, the trophy will be their property. C. B. Doyle and R. E. Doyle have also won this cup twice.

The tournament is held under the auspices of the United States Lawn Tennis association, and the winners will represent the south at this association's sectional doubles in Chicago. The winners of these matches will also have the privilege of challenging the national champions at Newport.

All matches in the men's singles will be the best two out of three, except the final and challenge rounds, when the best three out of five will prevail. All matches in the doubles will be the best three out of five, and in the ladies' single sthe best two out of three.

KIRKE'S JOB UPON FIRST

Several weeks ago the criticism was made that the Toledo team of 1913 boasted no individual favorites with the fans, on the order of Charlie Hickman, Fred Falkenburg, Ray Chap*man and others*, who stood out as pre-eminently on the team as to make the fans go out to the games just to see them perform.

No longer can this be said. Toledo has an idolized on the roster right now who bids fair to become as popular among the Hen fans as was Charlie Hickman. The new addition to the Hen Hall of Fame is Jay Kirke, the slugging first sacker o fthe Hens.

When Jay joined, he came here with the reputation of being a hitter. He was sent to right field and allfied to live up to expectations. Hartsel then shifted him to first base and the big fellow has been burning up the sod ever since.

Those who saw him play against Milwaukee and St. Paul have not yet ceased to wonder why he was not played first base all the time. Toledo has not had a first sacker in years who can cover as much ground around first base and throw, through all kinds as can Kirke. His playing around the bag is a revelation.

Then at bat Kirke has commenced to slaughter the delivery of the pitchers in murderous fashion. He hits as hard as Charlie Hickman did while he.

By a peculiar coincidence Hickman also played in the outfield and at first base on Toledo, the same roles in which Kirke now serves.—Toledo Bladge.

Footballist Meet

NEW YORK, June 23.—The first general meeting of the United States of American Football association, the newly recognized governing soccer body, was held here today with delegates from all sections of the country in attendance.

Dr. F. R. Manning, of New York, was elected president.

Stars for One Day

Twice Hal Chase walked and twice Collins followed with a triple. But two runs were scored by the Chicago White Sox, and these won.

Olson, Nap shortstop, made four hits in five times up in the game with Detroit. One was for two bases.

Both Jackson and Cobb were out of the Sunday game, Cobb retiring in the third owning to illness, while Jackson was banished by the umps.

Heinie Zimmerman, the Cubs' best hitter, secured a double, double and single in three times up.

Love, starring in center field for Memphis, was the prime mover in Sunday's game with the Lookouts. He bit safely three times in six times up, one being for a home run and another for a double.

Manager Stovall, of St. Louis, made three hits in four times up in the first game with Chicago. D. Pratt was there with a timely double.

Max Carey was the star hitter in the Pirate-Red game, getting three hits in four times up. Hollitzel, the Red first sacker, who is out of the game owing to an injury, delivered as a pinch hitter in the ninth.

Pitcher Scott, of the Chicago White Sox, fanned only fifteen St. Louis batters. This is a record for the season.

Nashville made four hits off Manning, and of this number Ivey Callahan secured just two, and one was a three-sacker and caused the only run.

Al O'Dell came through with a perfect batting average in Sunday's game with the Barons, getting two singles and a double in three times up.

Pug Cavet, Mobile hurler, slipped over his sixth straight win by defeating the Birmingham club 3 to 2. He allowed just five hits.

A GOLFING MEDLEY.

Sing a song of golfers
At the Nineteenth Hole;
Four and twenty duffers
Pouring out their dole;
When the spiel is started,
Pipe their wretched fate,
"I should have had an Eighty
But I toll a Ninety-eight."

Sing a song of golfers—
Hail the alibi;
Either short on precious sleep
Or sick enough to die;
Hear the mournful chorus
Echo through the town,
"I was badly off my game
And finished seven down."

What is the greatest game for the Grandoldalibi? We used to think baseball had had the leading trophy sewed up and it still makes a fair showing. But against golf it's average is a mere 6 2-3. If the average golfer didn't have an alibi of some sort handy the number of suicides would be quadrupled within a fortnight. Existence would hold nothing left worth while.

THE CAREENING WORM.

Turning about being fair play, the Cleveland Naps are proceeding to carry forward the edict.

For about ten years the Washington club has had them hoodooed and doublecrossed to the end. For as long as we can remember Tom Hughes has stood their choicest sluggers upon their broad beam's ends.

Now it comes about that Washington produces a pitcher who is practically unhittable, unswattable or unassailable as the case might be. His name is Johnson and he has the tribe spell bound—the tribe minus the Naps. They couldn't hit Hughes and they can't do much with Groom, but the Blonde Shrapnel is becoming their safest mark. They rapped him for five runs on his first appearance and tore him off at the second start. The Naps in fact have scored almost as many runs off Johnson in two starts as the rest of the league have scored in about fourteen. As to the whys and wherefores of the piercing mystery we pass the answer to some one with a better guess.

STILL UNCHARTED.

Back in April the Pittsburg Pirates were the best club in either league and the Boston Braves were the worst. At which point said Braves flounder along and peel off seven of their first nine games from said Pirates. Save for this slight technicality the elastic dope ruled without a flaw.

Prof. Bombadier Wells should furnish the English Polo team a banquet upon their Albionic arrival. Mr. Wells also touched lightly upon our shores this spring. He knows what the answer is.

OR NOT?

John J. McGraw figures the Cubs will be the only team between his people and another flag. Is the wish here father to the thought or merely farther to the dope?

It wouudn't surprise a lot at that to see Giants, Cubs and Pirates all in one death grapple about September first. The habit of twelve, long, struggling years is not dismantled in a day.

Why sport scribes love their jobs—

Dear Sir—Will you kindly let me know, at your earliest, what system should be used to find the average age of a baseball team? Please answer in your columns.—R. M.

We've forgotten exactly. But isn't it something about "the sum of the squares of the other two sides?"

A CONTRIB SPEAKS.

In courtin' and persuin'

GOTHAM STARS JOIN REGATTA

NTW YORK, June 23.—Local entries to the New England regatta on the Charles river, Boston, July 4, develop day by day. The people's regatta on the Schuykill river on the same day will get few entries, as there is a feeling against the Philadelphia oarsmen which time alone can heal.

Every active club in this neighborhood have men on the water who have begun to train for the various races on the Boston programme. Incidentally it should be mentioned that pleasure oarsmen had their innings also, as many barges were rowed to College Point, where Donnelly's "feed" and baseball continues to be the favorite Sunday diversion; a prestige held for more than a generation.

BOXER IS CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER.

DAYTON, O., June 23.—Edward Batty, aged nineteen, who was the opponent of Patsy Grant, the pugilist who died Saturday afternoon following a boxing contest here on Friday night, was arrested here last night charged with manslaughter. Coroner W. C. McKinney, following the fight, stated that it was his opinion that Grant died from being overheated.

PLAY FOR SEVEN TROPHIES OVER EAST LAKE COURSE

The seven golf tournaments that are to be held over the East Lake course this year promise to aid in the development of many young stars. Already one tournament has been played—the Albert L. Dunn and the Perry Adair meet is now in progress, with seven others yet to be staged.

There is nothing which prompts the young players to get into the game more than a regular tournament, and, with the great variety offered this season, the links promise to be well occupied for most of the season. The changes that are being made in the course will make it a bit more difficult and unfamiliar, yet the golfers will soon get next to the changes and be able to play around in good style.

The tournaments yet to be played are the president's cup, in which the qualifying round will be played July 4; the J. Carroll Payne trophy, which will be qualified for July 26; the Davis & Freeman cup, which is to have the qualifying round August 23; the club championship, which is to have the qualifying round on September 6, and the T. A. Hammond trophy, with the qualifying round September 20.

It is probable that several other tournaments will be added from time to time, so as to keep up the interest. The tournament committee is willing to add tournaments as they are needed, and, with the club members going at their present clip, several meets are sure to be added.

COLLINS IS RIGHT "THERE" IN EVERY LINE OF THE GAME

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—While other ports of entry for big league merchandise are boosting some local plug as the regular tin idol of the national frolic, this title old conservative settlement goes right along hogging about all the space there is at the front of both processions and takes it all as a matter of course without even gloating a single gloat over home accomplishments. Last summer we provided the man who batted in more runs than any ball player extant.

As we canter to press our conservative little village happens to be the abiding place of the fellow who has done more than any other ball player in captivity to stick his team up where it is now lodged, which happens to be as high as it can get without vaulting into space and busting Ike Newton's favorite theory, and yet a lot of plugs tottering along back in the dust appear to be copping all the press notices.

The man in question is one Edward Trowbridge Collins, a ball player parts, who was tickling the pill at a .400 step in the latest figures procurable, being a close third to Ty Cobb and Joe Jackson with the bludgeon, stands second to Milan in stolen bases, is second to Joe Jackson in lugging runs over the plate, and is also third to Jackson and Tris Speaker in extra bases. Which, speaking by and large, is averaging up some class.

Collins' all-around work this spring has been a more potent factor than any other individual asset possessed by the Athletics in keeping the team at the top at a time when the pitching, with few exceptions, has been largely unkempt and threadbare throughout, and he has been the principal instigator along the Ban Johnson trail in perpetrating assaults on the home plate.

This isn't merely a flash, but is running true to form as based on past performances. Starting as a regular in the big show in 1909, Eddie finished sectnd to Cobb in batting with an average of .346, also finished second to Cobb in stolen bases with 67, and led the second basemen of the American league in fielding. In the following year Eddie again led the second basemen in fielding. In the following year Eddie again led the second basemen in fielding, set a new record in stolen bases with 81, and finished with a batting average of .322. In the world's series of that year against the Cubs he pelted the pill for an average of .429, and practically stymied the Cub defense with his work on the bases. In 1911 Collins led the second basemen for the third consecutive time, batted .365 and stole 38 bases while he finished last season with a batting average of .348 and pilfered 63 bases, twice accomplishing the feat of stealing six bases in a single game.

Collins' grand total for the four years he has been a regular on the Athletics is a batting average of .345 for the period, compiled from 765 hits that has included 93 doubles, 38 triples and 9 home runs, and he has stolen a total of 249 bases and led the second basemen in fielding in three of his four seasons, finishing second to Maurice Rath in this respect last season.

Greek Olympic In March 1914

NEW YORK, June 23.—Greek athletes in this city learn that next year's special Olympic at Athens, Greece, will be staged on March 25, the same day King Constantine is crowned by his subjects.

With the exception of an aeroplane contest, the same program of events that was put on in 1906 will be duplicated at this meeing. The games and festivities will last until May 5.

It is expected Uncle Sam will be represented by a small team. Only the best material will be sent to fight for the Stars and Stripes in Greece. The 1915 sports at San Francisco follow, and then the Berlin Olympics. The public will be asked to contribute for two of these trips.

The events at Athens next year are: 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 meter races; original Marathon, from Marathon to Athens distance 42 kilometers; shot put; high and broad jumps; hop, step and jump; standing broad and standing high jumps; pentathlon, which includes discus, 200-meter run, broad jump, javelin and wrestling.

The aeroplane contest will create great interest. Height and distance will be reckoned by the officials. So far as we know, America has a couple of good aeronauts, and if proper plans are laid one of them may be induced to make the trip to Greece next summer.

Try to Lift British Cup

NEW YORK, June 23.—Motorboat enthusiasts are planning an attempt to lift the Harmsworth trophy, which was won by Mackay Edgar, of the British fleet of challengers last year in his Maple Leaf IV. The trial races for the selection of three boats to go to England will be held in Huntington Bay, L. I., the scene of last year's races, on July 7, 8 and 9.

The course, however, has been changed slightly so as to assure smoother water. Prospective entrants are keeping their plans secret, but it is said that more than a dozen boats, most of them new craft, will appear in the trials.

Crown Grove Wins

DALTON, Ga., June 23.—The Crown Cotton Mill team, of this city, administered a severe drubbing to Eton Saturday afternoon, winning, in a seven inning game, by a score of 20 to 0. Lasater, pitching for the millers, gave up only one bit, and his team fielded faultlessly, not making an error. Eller led the hitting for the mill team, getting five safeties out of five times up, the locals getting 15 hits. In addition to being hit hard, Dunn, working for Eton, was given miserable support.

The Crown Mill team is now going at a fast gait. Games with Cartersville have been arranged for July 4-5.

Procession in The Sally Race

Savannah Has Moved Up to 200 Points Ahead of Second-Place Club

With Savannah continuing to win, and now leading Macon, the nearest competitor, by almost 200 points, the South Atlantic league race for the first half of the 1913 season assumed the aspect of a procession during the past week.

There has been a liberal sprinkling of double-headers during the week, attended by the usual upsets of form and vagaries of fortune.

Perhaps the most striking feature has been the consistent performance of Macon, which club has shown a decided improvement of form in every department. The struggle between Macon and Columbus, no win third place, has been watched throughout the week wit hincreasing interest. Jaksonville continues its stubborn fight, although now led by Columbus b ya margin of 72 points.

Albany and Charleston continue to dispute the right to act a srear guard, the former club now holding the right to the tail-end title, having won only 13 of the 83 games played.

Despite unusually rainy weather, the attendance during the week has been good, and the outlook is regarded by experts as exveptionally brigh t.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Producer and Buyer

THESE things look like an outrage, and are to a certain extent. There are hundreds of just such cases and one of the things that keep hundreds of people from not producing something to eat as a side line in connection with tehir farming operations is they have so much trouble of disposing of it in a small way.

The bad part of it comes when the man who sells the goods finds out the price the people he sold them to is getting for same. Usually a great many of them double their money. That is all well and good when it can be done, but there is too much of it done and too big a per cent of profit expected from most people who handle these products. I realize that it costs money to do business in a city, it takes a man a long time to build up a reputation and get a long price for the products that he handles through his business and there is considerable loss to be sustained in doing a large business, but nevertheless the margins between the seller and the producer are wide and are too varied to keep one who finds out what a big difference there is in them satisfied. For instance, the man who produces chickens today and offers them on the city markets, usually his offer or what he gets for them will run from 12 1-2c to 15c per pound. The man who sells them gets from 20c to 25c per pound for them, almost double what the producer realizes, and when the producer finds out these facts it makes many of them dissatisfied and swear off and say they will not continue to be forced to accept such prices longer.

This same thing applies to cattle, hogs, and sheep as well. Today good money meat is bringing from 14c to 15c per pound by the side in the city. This class of cattle, which are not raised in the south, usually bring 5c to 10c gross to the raiser, which is a fair price, and leaves a reasonable per cent of margin for the retailer or the butcher who handles this meat. He cannot cut and take the waste and do business for a much closer margin than this, and at present it looks like the beef and hog industry, along with the cotton industry, are the things that seem to be nearer on a balance staple market basis than most anything I know of. Eggs come in this class also, but the difference in the price of chickens varies too much and does not compare in accordance with the other products. This is what discourages so many people about raising these products. It is a hard matter for them to realize the price they are entitled to and the price that would show them a profit. It is almost impossible for any man, even though he be on a farm and produce his own feed, to make any money out of raising chickens on the present price of feed throughout the south, unless he can get 18c to 20c per pound live weight and gross for his poultry products. This, of course, for old chickens, and 20c to 30c per pound for young chickens.

The ones who make a big per cent of profit out of poultry and practically double their money are the large buyers and the packing houses, who buy poultry in large quantities and invariably fatten them before killing. There is not 50 per cent of poultry that is sold on the market by the average farmer which is fat or in marketable condition when they are disposed of, and the large buyers, who get them in large quantities, usually double their money before killing them. They not only increase the weight one-third to one-half, but they get a better quality product and get one-third to one-half more for it after it is fattened and finished than the man who produced it gets. There is a tremendous difference and a big variation in price received from the producer and in price paid by the consumer, and the middleman will be understands his business, has a great opportunity to make a big per cent of profit. The great packing plant at Morristown, Tenn., which handles over two million dollars' worth of poultry products every year, evidently know their business, and have made a big per cent of profit, or these business would never have grown to the extent that it is now. They started in a small way years ago, and today have a tremendous business, and it is usually enlarged every week.

SEED, PET STOCK and SUPPLIES

H. G. HASTINGS & CO., SEEDS, PLANTS AND POULTRY SUPPLIES. NORTH & SOUTH SIDE DELIVERIES 9 A. M. INMAN PARK & WEST END, 2 P. M. BOTH PHONES 2568.

ONE of the greatest drawbacks to poultry raising in the south is lice. They kill more little chicks than all the diseases combined, and when a hen is full of lice you cannot expect her to lay many eggs. However, if you start in time you can get rid of these pests without any trouble. Cleanliness is the main thing to consider. Keep the house cleaned out and once a week at least spray thoroughly all the roosts dropping boards and nests with Pratt's or Conkey's Lice Killer. They are good preparations and are guaranteed to kill. It is also a good plan to use lice powder. A 25c box of Conkey's Lice Powder will dust about 75 hens and if used in connection with Lice Liquid, you can soon have your fowls free from these pests and you can soon see the good results from the increased egg production.

ARE your baby chicks lousy? Better examine them and if they are get a package of Conkey's or Pratt's Head Lice Ointment, prepared especially for baby chicks. Rub a little back of the head and under each wing and you will positively kill every louse and not injure the chicks. 15c and 25c package.

IT IS not a good plan to feed much corn during the hot weather. A great many brands of Scratch feed that are offered have about three-fourths corn. The Red Comb brand has only a small percentage and is by far the best scratch feed sold in this market. $2.25 per 100 pounds.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Georgia Avenue Sale and Some Small Leases Included in Monday's Real Estate Announcements – Encouragement Given Business in Increase of Bank Clearings in Atlanta and Elsewhere–General Conditions Being Watched

Bank clearings continue, by their increase, to give encouragement to general business, which, of course, includes and vitally affects real estate.

Atlanta's increase the past week was 5.7, and it is interesting to note that out of sixty-eight cities of the country represented, only nineteen show decreases.

The aggregate of the country the past week is a little under the week preceding, but is ahead of the corresponding week last year.

REALTY INQUIRIES.

Agents continue to report a good inquiries, with special reference to investment and residence properties, with a fair assortment of actual sales signed up.

A good deal of attention is now being paid to general conditions, and the status of the country is being watched closely, as it will turn loose the bulk of the south's money along in the fall.

Indications now point to a good yield and a good price. Should they make good, a lot of old accounts, carried over from last year, will be settled this fall.

EXCHANGE OF PROPERTY.

Paul S. Etheridge has sold to the Phoenix Planing Mill No. 66 East Georgia avenue, a six-room cottage on a lot 50x100, for $5,000, taking as part payment three lots on Cleland avenue, valued at $2,500. Robert McCarley, of the Clark-McBride agency, handled the deal.

SMALL LEASES.

John J. Woodside has made the following leases:

For Max Shurman to J. E. Evans & Co., No. 161 Edgewood avenue, a store, for $25 a month.

For J. R. Seawright to W. W. Jackson, No. 55 Stonewall street, for five years.

For G. F. Glazener to T. B. Norris Nos. 81 to 87 Houston street.

WRECK SHORTENED LEG; HE SUES FOR $50,000

Alleging that one of his legs had been made three inches shorter than another, and that he had been otherwise mutilated in a wreck, D. W. Bearden, an employe of the Southern railway, has brought suit against the railway in the federal court. He asks damages of $50,000.

The wreck occurred in Gordon county, on September 25, last. Bearden says the train was running at excessive speed, and that the rotten crossties and bad rails caused the smashup.

Now, he says, he has to use crutches as the result of a broken thigh bone, and that he also suffered from torn ligaments and severe injury to his nerves.

Saving and Investing

City Bonds for Everybody.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

New York City sold forty-five millions of 4 1-2 per cent. city bonds the other day to a hundred or more bankers at a price to yield the buyers 4.49 per cent. New York City bonds recently gravely doubt before the sale that enough bids would be received to enable the city to sell the whole issue at par.

In the savings banks of New York city there are several hundreds of millions of dollars on deposit which is receiving 3 1-2 per cent. and several scores of millions more which is receiving 4 per cent. in semi-annual dividends.

It will be discovered later, if any one cares to investigate, that a very large proportion of the $45,000,000 of 4 1-2 per cent. New York city bonds recently issued will be sold by the bankers to the savings banks of New York City, the banks which pay their depositors 3 1-2 and 4 per cent.

Why can not the money on deposit in the savings banks of New York City be used to purchase directly the city's bonds which yield the buyer a return of 4 1-2 per cent.? Why must the difference between what the city pays every year as interest on the bonds, and what the savings bank depositor get (a sum amounting to $450,000 in the case of those who get only 3 1-2 per cent. on their savings), be paid to the bankers and the savings bank management? Neither the bankers nor the managers of the savings institutions profess to be eager to buy such bonds.

The bonds of the average American city are absolutely safe—quite as safe as the average savings bank. It ought to be possible for the city to sell them directly to the people with savings. It is possible to sell them in that way. Philadelphia has proved the point recently enough. Philadelphia's bonds, sold over the counter directly to the people, were sold on a basis to yield only 4 per cent. With the right sort of handling of the matter New York could have sold her 4 1-2 per cent. bonds to the savings bank depositors on a basis of 4 1-4.

It is not a matter open to argument. There are certainly many times $48,000,000 in the New York savings banks which could be drawn out when it was clearly understood that by drawing the money out and putting it in city bonds the income return would, by that simple operation, be increased 1-4 of 1 per cent., that on every $2,000 the yearly return would be $5 more than before.

People generally don't know that they have a right to bid for city bonds and when they do know that they don't know what to bid.

Why not advertise city bonds widely, explain in the simplest terms just what they are, explain their absolute safety, and then put them on sale at a flat price? It would work.

Summer Camp Planned For Phone "Centrals"

What promises to be a delightful outing for the 500 employes of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company is the summer camp planned by Miss Katherine C. Tatum, chief of the stenographic bureau.

Every one of the hello girls, clerks, stenographers and bookkeepers will have the benefit of the outing, that will last from July 1 until September 30. The 20-acre farm of M. O. Jackson, on the Brown's Mill road, two miles beyond the terminus of the Lakewood car line, was tendered to them by Mr. Jackson when tendered to them by M. Jackson when the proposition was made known.

Instead of going away for their two weeks' vacation, the girls will have the opportunity of spending that time on the farm at a nominal cost—much less than a trip would tax each individual.

It is planned to have a dozen tents, with an average of six beds in each. Perfect sanitary arrangements have been made, and there will be running hot and cold water in each of the tents. There will be also telephonic communication, a community library, and the daily papers on file.

LOWER CABLES AND BEAR PRESSURE CAUSE DECLINE

Market in New York Closed 4 to 14 Points Down From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 23.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of four to six points in response to lower Liverpool cables, but rallied on the favorable weather conditions over Sunday and renewed covering of July and August contracts appeared a reaction of some thirty to thirty-five points from the high levels of last week, however, and the market met a good deal of buying by recent sellers for a turn, or by people who had been waiting for a reaction in order to secure a position on the bull side. Prices eased off rapidly during the forenoon, rallied from four points from the lowest during the early trading.

After selling off to a net loss of 7 to 10 points cables the market steadied again on covering with prices showing rallies of 5 or 6 points from the lowest. Early trading exceeded 4,000 bales.

During the afternoon demand seemed to broaden and fluctuations were rather irregular with the later months ruling about 4 to 7 points net down.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, June 23.—Cotton futures opened steady with a decline of 5 to 8 points on poor cables and a favorable weather report. The official reports noted rain in Arkansas, where it was needed, and at a standstill in parts of the eastern belt. Following the initial decline there was a recovery on fresh buying on account and July went 5 points over Saturday's close, while the new crops went within 2 points of that level on the upward movement and well maintained. The forecast of fair weather, except for rain in parts of Virginia and the Carolinas, was called bearish and the selling that followed put prices of the new crops 8 to 9 points under Saturday's final figures.

Toward the middle of the morning offerings of the new crop months increased on the theory of the rumor that a private crop reporting house was out with condition figures of 85.2 per cent against its own last figures of 86.5. The new crops went 12 points under Saturday's close. Offerings were light and the market met the decline. Shorts were quick to take profits and there was considerable buying. Cotton is much long buying, checked the downward movement and brought a rally of 15 points. At noon July stood 1 point under Saturday's close while the most active new crop months were 7 under.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, June 23.—Weather conditions continued favorable over Sunday with a fair rainfall in Arkansas, the balance of the scattered showers in the central states and west Texas, temperatures normal. Forecast tonight and night indications are for partly cloudy to fair with warmer weather, some scattered showers.

Washington predicts a week of fair, warm weather—just as needed. Liverpool is poor in its departments, futures about two lower than yesterday's closing, sales only 6,000 bales. Spot news continues unfavorable and the reports of disappointments at the ginning of the crop in Texas is bound to show itself in a further decline.

The Press reports a congestion of old crop, Egyptian cotton in the warehouses in Alexandria on an apparent failing off in the demand for it, the spinning situation, especially in Lancashire, is the reverse of encouraging.

Spots unchanged; silver ¼ down; rentes ten down. The Press report from Texas says that over the active fight made against the boll weevil. The report says that 250,000 were brought in prizes; 450,000 weevils were brought in; almost one-tenth of the weevils caught in the county. The report from Texas shows lower and weakened steadily. Demand selling is local in character and no outside support is reported some influential selling. Conditions generally reflected favorable unfavorable and financial situation is the principal bear factor.

COMMERCIAL APPEAL'S CROP REPORT

The weather of the past week was very favorable for the growth of cotton and corn in both. Temperatures were high, with good showers in west and clear skies in the remainder of the belt—just the kind of weather the cotton plant made good progress, al lthe latter its energies were completely absorbed in the work placed upon it by the cool weather of May. Chopping will now be the principal agricultural work and for this reason the week's advancement was more real than appearance. As a result of the cool weather the crop all over the entire belt is a bit small, although probably slightly larger than last year, it has made a thrifty growth and shows a health that accompanies a good taproot and favorable conditions. Good rains in Texas portions of Oklahoma supplied the one deficiency in those states for the best growth of the plant. The excellent cultivation that has been a pronounced characteristic of the crop in all sections of the belt is being continued and soil is perhaps better worked than at this season of the season. The hints and the fact that farmers were in the Mississippi bottoms and grass to gain headway in portions of Texas, that the situation is one that days work will soon cure. The other sections of the central valleys. Alabama is nearly all of Georgia, are nearly 100 per cent in the soil in excellent condition. The Carolinas and a small portion of Georgia are in more of warm, open weather are in need to further cultivation and the growth of the plant. Arkansas and the central valley are beginning to need rain, but no material injury will result should dry weather continue for another week. The one complaint reported was of boll weevil in Mississippi and other isolated sections of Texas and Oklahoma. There is a big crop out in Texas and Louisiana, but farmers are fighting the weevil in different directions of improvement and are confident that in most localities they have them whipped.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

"A reaction from the prevailing moderate temperature to seasonably warm weather will be general over the northern half of the belt, the Ohio valley and the middle Atlantic and New England states by Wednesday," the weekly bulletin said.

Such precipitation during the week will be generally light and local and confined almost entirely to the northern states and the Rocky mountain section.

"No important storm is charted to cross the country the coming week.

Perfect map, part cloudy Atlantics and west Texas; fair rest of belt. Fine rains Atlantics, some good rains over central states and west Texas. Absolutely normal temperatures, not excess, warm nights.

Dallas wires as follows: Texas clear and pleasant; Oklahoma, generally part cloudy; no rain reported.

Snow wires from Minneapolis: Western Iowa and southern and central Minnesota warmer. Early wheat heading north to Mankato. Wheat and oats average good. Corn late in Missouri Valley bottoms, but in every way promising. General crop prospects above average.

Snow wires from Omaha June 21:—"Nebraska has the largest winter wheat crop in her history with a larger rate of yield than was ever reported. Hay and oats promising. Corn crop perfect."

Grain belt forecast—Indians, Minnesota and North Dakota unsettled; probably showers. Michigan fair in north, showers in south; rest of belt, fair.

Minneapolis says elevator men reports crop not doing so well along the line as expected. Springfield Ill., Fine rains here great help to corn; first rain in late July crop.

Texas reports: Reports from all over the state most promising. In fact perfect conditions so perfect that anything to happen must be detrimental as there is practically no room for improvement. Very little complaint reported for heavy new crop movement from south Texas; in fact, movement never second half of July. European business so far very unsatisfactory; no demand.

Government report on Thursday, July 3, at noon eastern time, will give acreage of cotton this year, compared with 1912 to June 25.

New York wires Fell and Farnch steady sellers.

Forecast: Louisiana—Tonight generally fair and Tuesday; light southerly winds.

Arkansas, Oklahoma and West Texas—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday.

East Texas—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; light southerly winds.

Georgia—Local showers tonight and Tuesday.

Alabama—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

Mississippi—Generally fair tonight or Tuesday, warmer southeast portion tonight.

Tennessee—Generally fair tonight or Tuesday.

Kentucky—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer Tuesday.

Sentiment was somewhat more bearish this morning, owing to offerings of considerable summer positions. Weather is favorable, also. However, buying was rather general on and after the call.

11 a. m. bids in New orig were as follows: January, 11.33; March, 11.43; August, 11.89; October, 11.41.

10 a. m. bids in New Orleans were: January, 11.49; July, 12.38; August, 12.02; October, 11.47.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow-Jones' summary: St. Louis dispatches say Walter Fleming Oil Co.'s stock is to be increased from $4,000,000 to $10,000,000 with New York, English and German bankers heavily interested. Chairman Owen, after sundry conferences with New York bankers, says there will be no material changes in currency bill. Sorvia rejects Bulgaria's proposal to demobilize and thinks allied demand $200,000,000 was indemnity of Turkey. Two industrials declined .88; twenty active rails declined 1.31. American stocks in London weak.

The action by the interstate commerce commission regarding increases in freight rates was not quite as drastic as was first believed. Prices had a good reaction from high figures of last week and depicts the four per cent reductions in Europe, I believe stocks conservatively accumulated on week spots will shortly show satisfactory profits.—Potter.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Bartlett, Frazier & Co., say: Map shows precipitation in Canadian northwest, but very little in the American northwest. There does not seem much in the way to cause any important change in value.

Corn—Since January there have been good rains over entire corn belt. Prices will doubtless be lower today, the extent of decline depending on the volume of liquidation.

Oats—As in corn, prices will doubtless be more or less of a depressing factor.

Provisions—General sentiment continues bullish, but an easier market may give us some decline.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, June 23.—The volume of trade today was not large, but considering this fact dealing was pretty evenly divided. There was selling by the Wall street interests who were prominent on that side on Saturday, but a good scattered demand for contracts was found on the slight decline. Overnight news was bearish and some of the Saturday sellers covered. Weather continues very favorable and local sentiment favors a further decline.—Anderson.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS STRONG AND HIGHER

Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Canadian Pacific Lehigh Valley and St. Paul Led

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 23.—Initial leading stocks rose strongly as trading began today, although some of the gains of Saturday were lost and gave the market an appearance of irregularity. The largest gains, amounting to a point or more, were made by Union Pacific, Reading, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul and Chesapeake and Ohio. American Locomotive receded 1¼ and Westinghouse Electric a point.

Bear covering was on an extensive scale, the improvement in speculative sentiment over Saturday causing a more general turn to the long side by the professional element. International stocks made the best show on strength. Canadian Pacific gained three points, Union Pacific 2¾, and Reading and Lehigh two points.

From the professional point of view undercount a change over the week-end and there was no trace during the morning of the acute weakness of Saturday's last hour. Saturday's sharp setback overdone led to heavy buying today and the rally in the prices was well maintained through the morning, although trading became dull at the highest level.

The improvement was due partly to the belief that the bearish interpretation placed on the interstate commerce commission's action on Saturday was hardly justified, in view of the statement that the commission institute an inquiry as to whether existing freight rates were adequate.

Bear traders were disconcerted by the narrow movement of American securities in London, following the severe setback which brought last week's trading to a close. Practically all of Saturday's losses were made up before the morning's session ended, with the rising greatest in Union Pacific, which was the weakest feature in Saturday's late trading.

Activity abated and prices reacted half a point or more. The check to the advance was due in part to the satisfactory way the foreign demand which amounted to 25,000 shares and the running off of the more timid shorts.

Some short selling was again evident especially in Union Pacific which lost half of its earlier rise. Bears were inclined to strength on their conviction that the movement was owing to the uncertainty as to what form the dissolution decree against the Steel will take.

Special weakness in inactive stocks drew attention to continued liquidation.

Closed steady.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, June 23.—Money was in good demand. Discount rates were firmer on the announcement that Germany had taken the bulk of the $4,250,000 new gold offered in the open market.

Further liquidation, especially in Brazilian and Peruvian rails, gave the stock market a weak appearance during the forenoon. There was an upturn in the afternoon with Americans leading the general recovery.

Steel exchange was a spurt on New York buying leasing American securities advanced from 1 to 2 points on the day, but closed with smaller gains. The close was firm.

M'ADOO ANNOUNCES THE NEW CUSTOMS DISTRICTS

Savannah to Be Georgia Headquarters, Abolishing Office in Atlanta

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Secretary McAdoo, of the treasury department, has just settled all disputed questions in the south over the redistricting of the customs service and is now practically prepared to effectuate the sweeping customs reorganization the country over on July 1.

Jacksonville will be the headquarters of the Florida district. While some treasury officials believe Tampa should be the headquarters of the district because, it is said, the import business of that port is far greater than that of Jacksonville, it has just been decided that under the plan of reorganization as sent to congress by former President Taft, it is imperative that Jacksonville be designated as the headquarters of the collector for Florida. To meet the requirements of the service, it is added, however, the collector will spend much of his time at Tampa.

The prolonged controversy in Virginia between Norfolk and Newport News for the honor of possessing the headquarters of the collector of customs has been decided in Norfolk's favor. Treasury officials, in drawing the re-*organization plan, originally compromis*ed the situation by making Norfolk and Newport News the dual headquarters of Virginia, empowering the collector to divide equally his time between the two ports.

While there is some ambiguity in the phraseology of the plan as sent to congress by former President Taft with reference to Virginia, it is said that undoubtedly the former president meant Norfolk to be the headquarters and that cannot legally be changed without legislation. Like the situation in Florida, the collector, although his headquarters will be Norfolk, will spend some of his time at Newport News.

As finally decided upon, the new southern districts and the ports of entry, continued or created, are as follows, the first port mentioned in each instance being the headquarters of the collector:

Virginia (except Alexandria county): Norfolk, Newport News, Richmond, Petersburg, Cape Charles City, Chincoteague, Reedville.

South Carolina: Charleston, Georgetown, Beaufort.

Florida (including St. Marys river north bank): Jacksonville, Tampa, Key West, Punta Gorda, Boca Grande, Miami, Pensacola, St. Andrews, St. Augustine, Fernandina, Cedar Keys Port Inglis, Apalachicola, Carrabelle.

Mobile (including Alabama and part of Mississippi): Mobile, Birmingham, Gulfport, Scranton.

New Orleans (including Louisiana and part of Mississippi): New Orleans and Morgan City.

The reorganization of the customs service of the entire country is the most drastic ever attempted at one time. It reduces the number of districts from 162 to 49 and abolishes 113 collectors of customs, including a number in the south.

afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Empire building to make final arrangements for an entertainment to be given in honor of the governor of the state, the president of the senate, the speaker of the house and members of both branches of the legislature.

Some time ago it was decided that the chamber show in no uncertain terms its regard for Georgia's general assembly and officers of the state, and accordingly the following committee was named by the president:

J. R. Smith, chairman; Albert Howell, David Woodward, Mel R. Wilkinson, V. H. Kreigshaber and F. J. Paxon. At this meeting the committee will decide formally on the nature of the entertainment, whether it shall be a barbecue, a banquet a reception or some other form of cordial welcome for the lawmakers.

The matter has been under consideration by the members of the committee since their appointment and it is a foregone conclusion that they will decide the matter in a way that will mark a red letter event in the annals of the chamber of commerce.

sions of public duty when these things which touch us privately seem very small; when the work to be done is so pressing and so fraught with big consequence that we know that we are not at liberty to weigh against it any point of personal sacrifice. We are now in the presence of such an occasion. It is absolutely imperative that we should give the business men of this country a banking and currency system by means of which they can make use of the freedom of enterprise and of individual initiative which we are about to bestow upon them.

"We are about to set them free; we must not leave them without the tools of action when they are free. We are about to set them free by removing the trammels of the protective tariff. Ever since the Civil war they have waited for this emancipation and for the free opportunities it will bring with it. It has been reserved for us to give it to them. Some fell in the Confederate army in the dutiful security of their dependence upon the government; some took advantage of the shelter of the nursery to set up a mimic mastery of their own within its walls. Now both the tonic and the discipline of the party and maturity are to ensue. There will be some readjustments of purpose and point of view. There will follow a period of expansion and new enterprise, lushly conceived. It is for us to determine now whether it shall be rapid and facile and of easy accomplishment. This it can not be unless the resourceful business men who are to deal with the new circumstances are to have at hand and ready for use the instrumentalities and conveniences of free enterprise which independent men need when acting on their own initiative.

NOT ENOUGH TO STRIKE SHACKLES

It is not enough to strike the shackles from business. The duty of statesmanship is not negative merely. It is constructive also. We must show that we understand what business needs and that we know how to supply it. No man, however clear and analytical his observation of the conditions now prevailing in the country, can fail to see that the key of the other things business needs now, and will need increasingly as it gains in scope and vigor in the years immediately ahead of us, is the proper means by which readily to vitalize its credit, corporate and individual, and its originative brains. What will it profit us to be free if we are not to have the best and most accessible instrumentalities of commerce and enterprise? What will it profit us to be quit of one kind of monopoly if we are to remain in the grip of another and more effective kind? How are we to gain and keep the confidence of the business community unless we show that we know how both to aid and to protect it? What shall we say if we make fresh enterprise necessary and also make it very difficult by leaving all else except the tariff just as we found it? The tyrannies of business, big and little, lie within the field of credit. We know that. Shall we not act upon the knowledge? Do we not know how to act upon it? If a man cannot make his assets available at pleasure, his assets of capacity and character and resource, what satisfaction is it to him to see opportunity beckoning to him on every hand, when others have the keys of credit in their pockets and treat them as all but their own private possession? It is scarcely clear that it is our duty to supply the new banking and currency system the country needs, and that it will immediately need it more than ever.

The only question is, when shall we supply it—now or later, after the demands shall have become reproaches that we were so dull and so slow? Shall we hasten to change the tariff laws and then be laggards about making it possible and easy for the country to take advantage of the change? There can be only one answer to that question. We must act now, at whatever sacrifice to ourselves. It is a duty which the circumstances forbid us to postpone. I should be recreant to my deepest convictions of public obligation did I not press it upon you with solemn and urgent insistence.

MUST MOBILIZE RESERVES.

The principles upon which we should act are also clear. The country has sought and seen its path in this matter within the last few years—sees it more clearly now than it ever saw it before—much more clearly than when the last legislative proposals on the subject were made. We must have a currency, not rigid as now, but readily, elastically responsive to sound credit, the expanding and contracting credits of every day transactions, the normal ebb and flow of personal and corporate dealings. Our banking laws must mobilize reserves; must not permit the concentration anywhere in a few hands of the monetary resources of te country or their use for speculative purposes in such volume as to hinder or impede or stand in the way of other more legitimate, more

R. H. NORTHCUTT'S HOME IS BURNED AT MARIETTA

"Cap" Joyner, Former Atlanta Fire Chief, Was There With His Old Gum Coat

The fine home of R. H. Northcutt, on Atlanta street in Marietta, was totally destroyed by fire which started about 3 o'clock Monday morning, supposedly from the kitchen flue.

Prompt work by the Marietta fire department saved most of the furniture and household effects, though the house itself was burned to the ground.

The loss is estimated around $10,000.

"Cap" W. R. Joyner, former chief of the Atlanta fire department, who now lives in Marietta just a few doors from the Northcutt place, caught the old fire-fighting fever and hurried to the scene, wearing a gum coat.

But he was prevented from taking a very active hand in the work, for Mrs. Joyner, close behind him, took hold of his arm and held him back, fearing that he would be overcome by the exertion.

The wrecker had gone to Carbon Hill to replace some freight cars on the track and was returning to Birmingham when the accident occurred.

The young men are P. H. Hagedorn, West Point; H. L. P. King, Macon; J. R. Lester, Covington; C. H. McLendon, Omaha, and C. B. McManus, Smithville.

the district, but such state banks as are willing to put themselves upon a footing which will be equitable to the national banks. This is an important provision and gives to the state institutions a protection which they deserve, for they share with the national banks the responsibility of furnishing banking facilities to the business of the country.

"The great point of advantage to the banks—an advantage that ought to make them willing to accept the bill without question—is that it furnishes a currency which they can secure in time of need, without having to ut up bonds as security. The bond requiremtn largely neutralizes the advantage of the money issued on them as security, because the banks cannot draw back more from the government than they have already invested in the bonds, but where a bank can put up good assets it is able at all times, without sacrifice, to secure any additional circulation that the community may need, and the governing board can be trusted to issue its treasury notes to the regional reserve banks on terms that will be fair and just.

"The business interests will, I think, welcome this bill as an unalloyed blessing. It gives them, through their banks, a promise of relief in any time of stringency, and it gives this promise without putting in the hands of the banks a power that might be used against them. The bill is a faithful fulfillment of the promises made in the Baltimore platform, which reads as follows:

"'We oppose the so-called Aldrich monetary bill or the establishment of a central bank; and we believe the people of this country will be largely freed from panics and consequent unemployment and business depression by such a systematic revision of our banking laws as will render temporary relief in localities where such relief is clearly defensible, protection from control or domination by what is known as the money trust."

"*Banks exist for the accommoda*tion of the public and not for the control of business. All legislation on the subject of banking and currency should have for its purpose the securing of these accommodations on terms of absolute security to the public and of complete protection from the misuse of the power that wealth gives to those who possess it.'

"I feel sure that the Democrats of the senate and house will rally to the support of the bill, and I am sanguine enough to believe that it will receive a cordial support from Republicans as well."

President Wilson freely discussed the Glass currency bill with Washington newspaper men today and made it plain that he intends to stand squarely behind it as he does behind the tariff bill. The general principles of the bill he considers clearly defensible, but he expects there will be amendments as to detail.

The president is inclined to believe that the bankers eventually would be glad of direction by a federal reserve board of which they have no connection but which would safeguard their interests. He made it clear that he had no fear of politics in that connection.

So far as the redis*counting features of* the bill are concerned the president regards the provision to compel federal reserve banks of one region to rediscount assets of a reserve bank of anoth-

American Bankers Consider The Wilson Currency Bill

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 23.—Eleven of the fifteen members of the currency commission of the American Bankers' association, whose views on *numerous prob*lems were made known in a statement they gave out Saturday night, were in conference at an uptown hotel Sunday with the currency bill recently framed in Washington as the subject of consideration.

United States Senator Robert L. Owen, chairman of the senate committee on banks and currency, who will have the new bill in charge in the upper branch of congress, was in the city and was reported to have attended the conference. The senator would not admit, however, that he had been present. He returned to Washington last night. The bankers expect to continue their conferences today.

Senator Owen was reported to have outlined the attitude of the administration on currency legislation and to have indicated that full consideration would be given any suggestions the bankers might make regarding the bill or objections they might have to provisions in the measure.

stairs, assuming that the Phagan girl undoubtedly preceded Miss Stover into the factory. Miss Stover would have seen the body, they say, if Mary Phagan had been killed at the foot of the stairs.

Frank at the coroner's inquest asserted that he paid Mary Phagan at about 12:10 or 12:15 o'clock, and that he himself did not leave the building until about 1 o'clock.

LITTLE GIRL TALKS.

Monteen Stover admitted Monday morning that she has gone to police headquarters Sunday with her stepfather, H. W. Edmondson, Walter Sudderth and J. C. Hines, to see if Conley could identify her. That the police attach significance to the identification is evidenced by the frequent efforts made by detectives to get her to headquarters.

"They wanted me to go down there Friday," said the girl Monday, "but mamma didn't want me to. Then Saturday they 'phoned but mamma said no. Papa said I better go Sunday afternoon ,so he took me down to the station himself.

"I wore the raincoat and hat I wore the day I went to the factory, but I didn't wear the tennis shoes I had on that day and Conley said I was the one he saw only he said I had on 'easy walkers' that day. I guess he meant the tennis shoes.

"When I went to the pencil factory I went right up stairs to the office and went through the front room to where they paid off. Nobody was there. The office door was open so I thought some one was around. I waited abut five minutes and I noticed the clock when I went in. It was five minutes after twelve. Nobody came and I didn't hear anybody so went down the stairs again and left the factory."
